Tom Watson, a 25-year-old American who three times had squandered chances in major championship events, kept his cool all the way Sunday at Carnoustie, Scotland, and won a playoff for the British Open golf title. Watson holed a 30-foot chip shot for an eagle at the 14th hole and went on for a one-under-par 71, beating Australian Jack Newton, also 25, by one shot. Page 14.

Major league baseball clubs have paused for the annual all-star game with National League teams hoping the three-day break will disrupt the charge of Cincinnati's rampaging Reds, who won their 10th straight game Sunday and made it 41 victories in their last 50 games. Page 15.

Fragile Ulster Truce Cracks

LONDON (AP) — The fragile, five-month-old ceasefire between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland looked ever more feeble today, with three new killings and a toughening stance by diehard Protestant leaders.

Meanwhile, police in England were quoted as saying they had details of a plan by the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) to renew planting bombs in British cities and to shoot prominent Britons if the truce fails.

Police in the English port city of Liverpool, where many Irish live, arrested IRA gunman Sean Kinsella, who broke jail with 18 other IRA men in the Irish Republic last August. Several of these men could be in Britain, police believe.

Liverpool police said the arms and explosives seized in a raid there last week is the biggest IRA arms cache ever uncovered in Britain.

The Dublin Sunday Press newspaper says partly burned documents found in the raid described an IRA plan to bomb London and English Midlands cities if sectarian conflict bursts out again in Northern Ireland.

The Sun says the British police have details of IRA plans to shoot British judges and policemen. It suggests seven shootings of policemen, one of them fatal, in English cities since Christmas have involved the IRA, and claims a buildup for the projected violence in Britain has been going on for months.

Jump-Gun Walkouts In Mills

Forest industry workers have jumped the traces at eight B.C. pulp and paper mills in strikes the government hoped to avoid by appointing a special mediator to settle strife in an already market-depressed industry.

The action follows a heated meeting of union, and management representatives in Labor Minister Bill King's office Saturday and included wildcat work stoppages at lumber camps in a few instances.

But a spokesman for Forest Industrial Relations said today he understood camp operations are normal today and the International Woodworkers of America is "operating completely with the government's request to maintain the status quo and keep it cool."

Pulp workers meanwhile are picketing mills at Crofton and Elk Falls on Vancouver Island, and at Prince George Pulp and Paper, Prince Rupert, Ocean Falls and Port Mellon on the mainland.

At Kamloops pulp mill there is a strike but no picketing, according to FIR, and at Woodfibre there is a work stoppage which the company says is a maintenance shutdown and the workers claim is a lockout.

In addition, there are two others of the 20 B.C. pulp mills which are not operating.

Extension Likely In Food Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — The industrial inquiry commission set up to propose a non-binding settlement of the British Columbia food industry dispute may require more than 14 days to reach its conclusion, the commission head said Saturday.

Clive McKee, a private labor relations consultant appointed by Labor Minister Bill King to help settle the dispute, said it would be at least a week before he can complete a report he is currently doing on the B.C. construction industry.

McKee said he expects he

$1 OFFER FOR BOAT

The provincial government has put forward a purchase bid of $1 for the Canadian National Steamship Prince George, the vessel that formerly plied the waters from Vancouver to Alaska.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said the bid was submitted with "our full commitment that the provincial government will restore the ship to proper use ... on a much neglected coastline."

"While this price is low, ships have been purchased in the past from the federal government and CN for this price."

The province would start a one-week round trip up and down the B.C. coast during the tourist season, calling at small communities along the way to provide new interest in the long-neglected service to the isolated areas.

Following a small fire at the rear of the Prince George's main deck earlier this year, CN cancelled the vessel's Alaska run and called for bids, a joint release from Williams and Transport Minister Bob Strachan says.

"Evidently there have been numerous bids from around the world, most of them at scrap value of about $200,000, that would see the Prince George taken away from British Columbia."

Illegal Liquor Runs ... Now Family Fun

By PAT DUFOUR

A West Indian smuggling sloop sailed into the Inner Harbor under cover of darkness Saturday night.

Her intentions are honorable, however.

She's been bought by a Coquitlam inspection officer, Jon Van Tamenen, who's sailed her 10,044 miles from Grenada.

He had to.

The 40-foot workboat has no engine. Her only electronics is a radio direction finder.

Van Tamenen, who calls his boat Ancestor V, first saw her when he was in the Caribbean aboard the Vancouver-owned charter boat Ring Andersen.

"We were in Kingstown on the island of St. Vincent when I saw her sail in. She was smuggling in 200 bags of rice from British Guyana. I knew then I had to have her," Van Tamenen said.

The Ancestor V was built on the island of Carriacou, 50 miles north of Grenada and is the first boat of her type ever to go through the Panama Canal or sail the Pacific.

Although built in 1971 she looks as if she could once have been helmed by the ancient mariner of folklore.

Van Tamenen explained why.

"The natives build these boats from Scottish plans that are 200 years old. There are no plans left now but they just build as they need them. A boat only lasts for about 10 years, because they're worked so hard."

"They just keep picking up old trees they see that are the shape required and cannibalize the old boat to make the new. The mast on this one has been on at least three other boats."

The Ancestor V has no keel. For ballast she relies on five tons of rock, securely held in place by timbers.

Sewage Closes Park

CRATER LAKE, Ore. (AP)

— Crater Lake National Park, one of the United States' great natural wonders, has been shut down indefinitely because its drinking water supply is polluted by a fouled sewage line.

Investigators from the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, checking on the cause of hundreds of cases of stomach disorder among recent park visitors, shut down the park after green dye poured into a toilet in the park lodge appeared in drinking water 90 minutes later.

The CDC said that between 500 and 1,000 persons had become ill in the park since mid-June, complaining mostly of severe nausea, diarrhea and cramps. No deaths were reported.

Police sealed off all entrances to visitors — which number up to 100,000 a month during the summer — and teams of medical personnel were flown in by helicopter to inoculate some 250 park employees and visitors for hepatitis.

"No one really knows how long the park will be closed," said Richard Sims, park superintendent.

LONDON (AP) — The troubled pound sterling and the London stock market fell today as confidence waned in financial circles that Prime Minister Harold Wilson's new economic policy will bring down Britain's raging inflation.

There was widespread skepticism over the Labor government's anti-inflation package, announced Friday, as left-wing Laborites and several big unions prepared to oppose Wilson's package.

That pessimism could deepen later this week when the June price index published by the government is expected to show the annual rate of inflation has risen to more than 25 per cent, with worse to come. It currently stands at 25 per cent.

Monday's tumble on the stock and foreign currency markets reversed initial enthusiasm for the government's measures that attempt to cut the inflation rate to 10 per cent by next summer.

The pound, which made some gains last week in anticipation of those measures, slid to $2.1818 on the London market from Friday's close of $2.2005. It also lost ground against leading European currencies.

The value of the pound against 10 major currencies has fallen by 27.2 per cent since it was floated in December, 1971.

"It seems foreign operators are taking a poor view of the government's anti-inflation measures," said one dealer.

"They're not satisfied there are enough teeth in the plan and are disappointed in the absence of a cut in government spending."

Cain Again Breaks Out of Jail

By HOL-YIN DER
Times Staff

Daniel Bradley Cain, object of a sensational seven-hour Greater Victoria police manhunt April 8, is on the loose again.

The 19-year-old fugitive is being hunted by police following his escape early today from Wilkinson Road provincial jail where he was awaiting trial on charges including kidnap and theft, laid following the April incident.

Inspector Ted Owens of

CAIN

Saanich police said Cain, 19, was reported missing from the jail at 4:35 a.m.

Owens warned that Cain may be armed and dangerous and that anyone seeing him should call police immediately.

"Everyone in the Greater Victoria area should be cautious of opening their doors... until he's spotted, he could be anywhere," Owens said.

He said police have a dragnet out in the area and extra men have been called in to patrol all exits out of the city.

George Triplett, senior corrections officer at Wilkinson Road, said the escape was "implemented from the inside."

Although Triplett would not expand on how Cain escaped, police said Cain squeezed under his cell door and pried two bars from an outside window to gain freedom.

Cain is described as being five-feet five-inches, 125 pounds, slight build, with shoulder length sandy-blond hair and a tattoo of a heart

He was brought back to Victoria from the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster last Sunday for preliminary hearing Monday on a six-count charge of kidnapping 27-year-old Mrs. Diane Smith of 116 Leonard and her daughter Emily, 3, car theft, possession of a known stolen car, criminally negligent driving and being unlawfully in a dwelling house—that of the Smiths.

Nearly 200 hospital patients have been sent home from both major Victoria hospitals since Saturday in an effort to clear beds for emergencies during an expected strike of technicians of Victoria General Hospital.

Royal Jubilee Hospital is geared to receive an estimated 60 emergency cases a day in a contingency plan that was put into operation Saturday.

About 82 members of Health Sciences Association employed at Victoria General were entitled to commence strike action at 8:40 a.m. today, but up to noon they were still on the job.

Meanwhile, the hospital had cleared about 100 beds by sending some patients home and not admitting others for elective surgery. The Victoria General bed load was down to 325 today.

At Jubilee 98 patients were sent home and at both hospitals medical teams were going through the wards assessing all acute and medical-surgical patients with a view to further discharges.

Dr. Ray LeHuquet, medical director at Jubilee, said patient response to the discharges had been surprisingly mild, but the rearrangement was "terribly disrupting" to medical staff who have had a tight schedule of operations to maintain.

For example, there were 60 surgical operations scheduled for today, some of which have been on a waiting list for a long time. More were likely to be cancelled for Tuesday.

"Obviously we are going to have to rethink how to handle these people, some of whom have high priority," the director said.

It is possible, he said, that when the hospitals return to normal there will be long overtime schedules for operating theatres as patients are re-fitted into operating priorities.

Today, Jubilee was expected

CONVICT SET AFIRE

MONTREAL (CP) — A prisoner who was set on fire by two other prisoners at a maximum security federal penitentiary remained in critical condition Sunday, police said.

"We don't know whether he will live or die," said a police spokesman.

Jean Paul Duguay, 35, a prisoner at the nearby Archambault Institute, was on his way to have a shower last Tuesday when two prisoners splashed him with a flammable fluid and set him on fire, police said.

He suffered third-degree burns to about 75 per cent of his body.

Duguay was transferred to Queen Mary's Veteran Hospital from another Montreal hospital Sunday, hospital officials said.

Two prisoners are expected to be arraigned in sessions court this week in connection with the incident.

OLYMPIC DRAW WILL GO ON

MONTREAL (CP) — The Olympic lottery has been so successful that it "will continue a long time after" the 1976 Olympic Games, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Saturday.

The lottery, which had been forecast to produce $32 million, has surpassed expectations and revenue estimates now are up to $227 million, he said in a radio interview.

Mr. Drapeau also said there was no contradiction between his statement to the International Olympic Committee last May and the statement to the parliamentary commission recently citing the amount of work lost due to the recent construction strike at the 1976 Olympic Games site.

In May he said that the construction project was not behind schedule. The president of the construction firm told the municipal affairs standing committee in the national assembly Wednesday that the 14-week delay in work can easily be made up and the project had not been adversely affected.

Mayor Drapeau said the statements were not contradictory, but that they complemented each other. His statement had been misinterpreted. The "modest" increase in the cost was not unrealistic because of skyrocketing costs everywhere. For example, he said, the French-language newspaper La Presse has raised the cost of its newspaper three and a half times the price it was three years ago.

It was three years ago, he said, that he made the first estimate of costs for the Olympics. The original cost estimate of $310 million has been raised to $714.8 million.

Hospitals Send Patients Home

ing the transfer of some 45 acute care patients from the General Hospital and was hoping to discharge another 40 of its own patients meanwhile.

The situation was being reviewed daily at both hospitals as medical staffs attempt to deal with only the most urgent medical-surgical cases and new emergency admissions.

Jubilee was to be the focal point in contingency arrangements by accepting all emergency cases in the Greater Victoria area.

LeHuquet said if necessary, other bed-care facilities in the region could be pressed into service, including Peninsula Hospital, Resthaven, Gorge and Queen Alexandra Hospitals.

Members of the Hospital Sciences Association include pharmaceutical, radiological, dietary, physiotherapy, medical records, social services, nuclear medical and laboratory personnel.

Those employed by Jubilee were to take a strike vote this week, but no date has been set.

There are 2,500 such employees in the province, and in Kelowna, although a strike vote has been taken, paramedicals say they won't support strike action until they review the latest wage offer from B.C. Health Association, representing the hospitals.

The Hospital Sciences Association spokesman for the Kelowna General Hospital local said in an interview some of the local's members aren't sure the latest contract offer is cause for a strike.

The spokesman said the original strike vote was taken on a much smaller offer and although the strike vote still stands, the 60 technicians at Kelowna General will take a good look at the latest offer before supporting any strike action.

The employees have been offered wage increases of about 17 per cent and a cost-of-living adjustment in a one-year contract.

The union has served strike notice on 14 of the province's more than 80 hospitals. The union originally had sought increases of between 20 and 26 per cent. An employers' spokesman has said the union is seeking parity with registered nurses for laboratory and x-ray technicians who now earn about $200 a month less than the $1,000 received by registered nurses.

CHILDREN START GRASS FIRE

Twenty-five fires burning on southern Vancouver Island are being patrolled by the B.C. Forest Service—and all but four of those were started by lightning last week.

Four new fires were sparked over the weekend, including a one-acre grass fire near Colwood caused by children playing with matches, a forest service spokesman said today.

It took four water tankers Sunday to control it, he said. All current fires are small and cover a total of less than 10 acres, said the spokesman.

the weather

Thunderstorms rumbled on until past midnight at a few points in the B.C. interior last night. Scattered thunder-shower activity again this afternoon and evening will mar an otherwise generally sunny day throughout the interior. Low cloud and intermittent drizzle will persist on the north coast and the outer coast of Vancouver Island today. Meantime, other coastal areas should experience considerable sunshine. This pattern along with seasonal temperatures is expected to be repeated Tuesday.

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israeli planes attacked a Palestinian refugee camp in Lebanon twice, and four persons were reported killed and 22 wounded. Several hours later rockets from southern Lebanon hit the Israeli town of Nahariya, slightly wounding two women, the Israeli command announced.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin reported to the Israeli cabinet on his meeting with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger. A communiqué said the government would continue "the process of clarification and negotiation with the purpose of reaching a positive conclusion."

The Palestine guerrillas said their missile and gun crews hit two of the Israeli Phantom jets that rocketed and strafed the Ein Helweh refugee camp near Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, Sunday.

The Lebanese defence ministry said one of the jets crashed in flames into the Mediterranean. But the Israeli command said: "All our planes returned safely to base."

Residents of the camp said the first attack lasted 20 minutes, and the second attack came 20 minutes later.

The rockets destroyed a guerrilla radio station and damaged a number of huts and a mosque.

The Israelis said a plant manufacturing war materials for guerrillas was among the targets, but residents of the camp denied that such a plant existed.

Palestinian sources said those killed were a woman, a ed her smuggling career in the liquor trade.

"I'm told she carried 1,000 cases of spirits from Martinique to Grenada on her first trip," Van Tamen said. "And her decks were loaded with champagne."

Van Tamen's son, Todd, 11, accompanied his father and Van Tamen's nephew, Brian, on the first leg from Grenada to the Panama Canal.

They flew home from the canal, Hilton Fraser of Sarnia, Ont. taking their place as crew from that point on. Van Tamen reports it took 39 days to sail her from Hawaii.

All Ancestor V's lights, running and cabin, and her stove are powered by kerosene. When she left Grenada she had five gallons aboard and there's still a gallon left.

She's due to leave Victoria for her new home port on Tuesday with an escort to tow her through Active Pass and other crowded waterways.

"It would be stupid to attempt it alone with no engine aboard," Van Tamen said. "Other people wouldn't realize and I could get other boats in trouble."

He intends to put in a diesel engine and fit Ancestor V with an outboard motor once he's home but will not alter her workmanlike character.

Cain Breaks Out

higher court trial last Tuesday, Cain was taken to Wilkinson Road. He was to have appeared in Victoria provincial court today for statutory remand then returned to the B.C. Penitentiary.

"We were very much aware of the possibility of his attempt to escape," said Triplett, who is heading the investigation into the escape. "That's why we had him transferred to the B.C. Pen in the first place."

"Cain is a former escapee from the William Head branch of the B.C. Pen. ... we are a remand centre and not really equipped to handle this type of inmate," he added.

Cain had been sentenced late in 1974 in Victoria to two years for break-ins and thefts and was due for release in 1976. But on the night of March 22, police said, he left William Head in Metehosin. A quiet two-week search for him was transformed April 8 into an intensive manhunt which included a car chase, exchange of gunfire, abduction of hostages and finally, arrest. More than 50 Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen and RCMP were involved in the hunt.

On June 11, while awaiting routine statutory remand on the charges arising from the manhunt, Cain staged what Victoria police called "a childish prank" by climbing onto a tiny barred windowledge on the walls of the Victoria police station and staying there for eight hours. Cain told the press he was protesting special confinement at Wilkinson Road for himself and fellow inmate William Mack, 26.

During the eight hours, Cain learned he and Mack were to be transferred to a B.C. mainland detention facility because of an alleged plan to escape from the jail. Michael Hutchison, defence lawyer for Cain, said at that time the reports of escape were "all lies."

End Looms For Cuba Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States is expected to take up the Cuba embargo this week with some indications the 11-year trade ban may be eased.

The 12-day meeting in Costa Rica beginning Wednesday marks the third time in as many years the Cuba embargo has come up, and United States officials believe there is a better-than-even chance the OAS will either repeal or substantially weaken the embargo at this meeting.

One reason officials foresee affirmative action is that the U.S. is prepared for the first time to support a change in the 11-year-old OAS policy.

Eight months ago in Ecuador, the last time the OAS voted on a repeal proposal, 12 of the 21 countries were in favor but the embargo continued because the vote fell short of the required two-thirds majority of 14.

Soviets Refuse Second Rendezvous

Washington Post

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The United States asked the Soviet Union to agree to a second joint space flight next year but was turned down on grounds that it did not give the Soviets enough time to ready such a flight.

The U.S. request was made last year by deputy administrator George Low of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to Soviet Academy of Sciences President Vladimir Kotel'nikov. Low suggested that two Russian cosmonauts and three American astronauts dock with a Soviet Salyut space station and work together in Earth orbit for as long as two weeks.

The Soviets responded by saying they would undertake a repeat of this week's Apollo-Soyuz docking mission but could not be ready in time to take on a mission involving both Soyuz and Salyut with Apollo.

"We said we saw no need to repeat Apollo-Soyuz and they said they could not fly an Apollo-Salyut in any reasonable length of time, so it's dead," Low said in an interview Sunday. "Any second American-Russian space flight will have to wait until the 1980s."

The first American-Russian flight gets under way Tuesday morning when cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valery Kubasov lift off at 8:30 a.m. (5:20 Victoria time) in their Soyuz spacecraft, on the first leg of what is planned as a five-day flight for the Russians and a nine-day flight for the Americans. Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Donald (Deke) Slayton and Vance Brand will follow the cosmonauts into orbit at 3:50 p.m. (12:50 Victoria time) when their Apollo spacecraft is due to be rocketed into orbit from Cape Canaveral.

Almost two days will pass while the cosmonauts maneuver into a precise circular orbit and the astronauts steer the Apollo spacecraft onto a path that brings them just behind and below the Soviet spacecraft. The astronauts should have the cosmonauts in sight over South America late Thursday morning, docking the Apollo with the Soyuz as the two spacecraft cross West and East Germany on their way over the Soviet Union.

Launch teams in Tyuratam and at Cape Canaveral were busy Sunday fueling the two rockets that will carry the cosmonauts and astronauts into orbit.

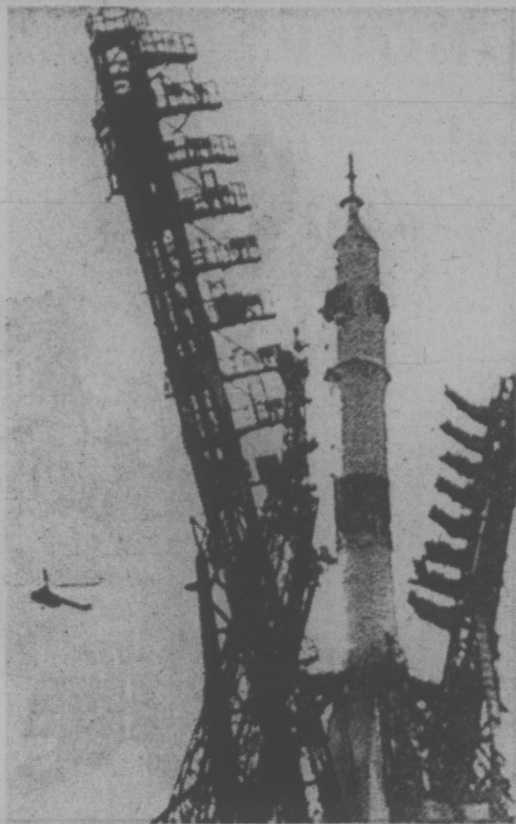

Half a world apart, Apollo Commander Tom Stafford spoke by phone with Soyuz Commander Alexei Leonov, who told Stafford that the countdown at Tyuratam was running smoothly.

Stafford told Leonov that he was "still sweating out the local thunderstorms" that strike Cape Canaveral almost every afternoon this time of year, but that everything else looked good for a launch on time Tuesday afternoon.

"We'll see you in a couple of days," Stafford said to Leonov.

"We're certain this mission will strengthen the friendship between our two countries."

Astronaut Packs His Pills

New York Times

NEW YORK — Tucked away in the medical kit aboard the Apollo spacecraft that is scheduled to rendezvous with the Soyuz capsule are potent heart pills that Donald (Deke) Slayton is ready to swallow in the unlikely event that his heart suddenly beats as erratically as it once did.

Slayton, at age 51, is the oldest man to fly in space, a fact that reflects his decade-long grounding for a mysterious heart condition. Electrocardiograms had detected the condition — periodic bursts of a heart rhythm irregularity called atrial fibrillation — when he was training for a flight in the Mercury program.

But through Slayton's zealous desire to go into space — he once got doctors to put a tube in his heart to convince bureaucrats he was as fit to fly as any other astronaut — the athletic test pilot got a clean bill of health.

HOSTAGE TO BE FREED

Manchester Guardian

DAR ES SALAAM — The last remaining hostage of four students kidnapped nearly two months ago by Zairese revolutionaries is about to be freed. The announcement of the imminent release of 22-year-old Stephen Smith of the United States was made by two women set free last month.

Emile Bergmann of the Netherlands and Carrie Hunter of the United States issued a press statement saying they had been shown a letter from Smith to the U.S. ambassador in Tanzania, Beverley Carter.

Hunter said the letter was received by Carter Saturday and in it Smith said he was being treated well and is about to be set free.

The announcement of Smith's impending release comes just four days before the expiration of a 60-day deadline set by his captors, the Popular Revolution Party of the Congo.

The PRP captured the four students when 40 of its armed guerrillas stormed an animal research station on the Tanzanian side of Lake Tanganyika on the night of May 13.

SUMMIT SLATED JULY 30

GENEVA (UPI) — The European Security Conference agreed today to hold a summit conference in Helsinki July 30 for signing a document covering co-operation in the entire field of political, economic and human relations.

The summit will bring together the heads of 35 states — all European countries except Albania — plus the United States, the Soviet Union and Canada.

The three-day meeting will provide the framework for countless bilateral meetings, particularly between President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The conference began at foreign ministers' level in Helsinki on July 3, 1975, following one year of preliminary contacts.

Very few western, neutral or non-aligned delegates were completely happy with the results of the meeting that has continued at Geneva, considering the wording so vague as to be almost meaningless on some points.

Gasoline Tax Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition plans a concerted attack this week on the government's 10-cents-a-gallon excise tax on gasoline for personal use.

Spokesman for the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democrats says the debate may take most, if not all, of the week.

This means there is little hope of the House recessing this week so MPs can go home for summer vacations.

Mitchell Sharp, government House leader, has said he wants the Commons to deal with the excise tax legislation and changes to the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Public Service Staff Relations Act and the Combines Investigation Act before the Commons rises.

While the government wants Parliament to stay in session until the excise tax becomes law, it will be content with some progress with the other bills.

Both the excise tax and the unemployment insurance bills followed presentation of the June 23 budget by Finance Minister John Turner.

Co-op Plan for Beer

More than 100 B.C. hotels crippled by a strike at Molson's brewery will be helped by a co-operative plan to share existing draught beer supplies of unaffected hotels.

Liquor Administration Branch general manager Vic Woodland said the sharing plan was brought into operation today in Victoria, up-Island and in the northern sector of the province extending eastward from Prince Rupert.

He said it would enable hotels closed by the draught drought to re-open their doors for at least part of the 14-hour maximum selling day for pubs.

Five Victoria hotels that are Molson houses have been able to continue to serve customers with bottled beer, although it, too, is in short supply.

A number of other Molson houses up-Island and scattered throughout the province have found it impossible to keep their doors open and have stopped all beer sales.

The strike began following May 24 holiday and draught beer supplies ran out within a few days.

Liquor regulations prohibit switching sources of draught beer except for specified times when six months' notice has been given.

The sharing plan is based on a voluntary contribution of 10 per cent of an operating house's draught beer order which goes into a pool. Houses affected by the strike will draw from the pool according to a proportion of their normal requirements.

Case beer will be allocated similarly, providing struck hotels with 50 per cent more than what other hotels in their area would normally require.

The arrangements given LAB approval will last only until the Molson strike is resolved and the industry returns to normal.

Woodland said it was "very commendable of the members of the hotel association" to find the temporary solution.

Mounting Costs of Indifference

Canadians have had a few days to reflect on the rueful fact that an assortment of consumer goods which cost $100 in 1961 now cost $184. The cost of food has almost doubled in less than 15 years. Consumer prices rose 1.5 per cent in June, the highest increase this year and the second highest for any one month period since 1961. Seasonally adjusted food price increases over a one year period amounted to 19.5 per cent in June. The outlook is worse. June figures do not fully reflect the 10 cent per gallon excise tax on gasoline announced in the recent budget. In August another five cent per gallon tax will come into force.

Less than one month after John Turner's budget, its inflationary effects are beginning to show, mainly on low income consumers and pensioners as Conservative critics pointed out. The finance minister countered by saying government recognized there would be short term adverse affects on the cost of living and economic growth. But this must be accepted to meet long term goals of developing energy reserves, he added. In other words, Canadians must fund foreign oil companies to exploit our natural resources at the expense of every Canadian's standard of living. The national petroleum company, Petro Canada, is a paper company, it's $350 million exploration allocation gutted in the June budget.

With this kind of attitude emanating from Ottawa what can the average citizen expect the government to do about food costs. Earlier this year Health Minister Marc Lalonde told us not to worry about a little fecal matter in our food. Agricultural Minister Eugene Whelan said we should be happy to pay more for food to help farmers. That odious diversion for the masses, the Food Prices Review Board, invariably tells us that prices will go ever higher, although it has no power to stop the escalation. The budget hardly stirred the status quo.

Then comes the salient question. Why are food prices rising so fast? Agricultural Minister Whelan says farmers are still receiving only 50 cents per pound for beef on the hoof yet beef prices rose an average of 18 per cent in June. Obviously the rising costs are in the processing and distributing parts of the food industry. B.C. bakers are demanding an $87 per week increase from their current average rate of $237 per week. Meat cutters want a $3.50 per hour hike on a journeyman rate of $6.65 per hour. If they do not receive these rates most of the supermarkets in this province may be closed down in two weeks. Such increases are incredible. If they receive them supermarkets will pass the costs along to the consumer. Perhaps there are large profit margins in aspects of the food industry. Large profits are not as visible as large wage demands.

Anyone can see that large wage demands and possibly large profits are driving food prices ever higher. Yet the government refuses to stem labor's demands or even investigate food profits. Double digit inflation is still with us and all we hear from Ottawa is, "wait, things will get better in the long run". Canadians are exhausted from the short run. Many of us won't make it to the long run at this rate of inflation.

The Changing Face of Saanich

The news that Saanich is enjoying a boom in housing construction is gratifying, coming as it does at a time when the local economy can use a bit of bolstering.

But construction is a mixed blessing, especially in an area as pretty as Gordon Head.

It was scarcely five years ago that residents could see horses running in the fields and hear the gentle murmur of chickens.

There are still sounds in the air but they are human ones: the roar of the lawnmower, the squealing of tires, the irritating rumble of cars idling at the corner.

Construction noises are not music either. No bulldozer has yet been invented that sounds pleasant to the human ear. And there's nothing like the echoing sound of hammering to send a person indoors looking for his earplugs.

The look of Saanich is changing, too. The beautiful gentling rolling slopes are being dug up and converted to houses or blacktop. The subdivisions all look alike with their white houses and newly-planted trees reaching all the way up to three feet tall.

Animals, except for the inevitable dogs and cats, are almost extinct in the suburbs. It is a measure of the changing face of Saanich that a plane can fly now over the area and bring hardly an upward glance but a horse creates high excitement.

Every subdivision should be required by law to house at least six chickens, for cackling purposes (and the eggs would be welcome) as well as one community cow. The cow would moo and give milk. It might also eat the grass if it felt so inclined.

Something is lost every time a farmyard is dug up and turned into a suburban street.

Doubtful Information?

In the Victoria Times dated July 7, an editorial appeared entitled "The Great Canadian Rip-Off."

We, in the Unemployment Insurance Commission were somewhat concerned with parts of the article in that the information regarding payment of benefits under the Unemployment Insurance Act is quite misleading. For example, the claimant with eight weeks of insurable employment in his/her qualifying period does not receive 51 weeks of benefit but would receive a maximum of 18 weeks unless the national unemployment rate exceeded 4 percent. Then that person would receive a total of 26 weeks' benefit, this of course, on the understanding that the claimant remains capable, available, and unable to find suitable employment.

There is of course, a regional rate that applies in some areas but we are not exceeding the regional rate in Victoria, at this time.

It naturally follows that a claimant who returns to the labor force, works another eight weeks in insurable employment, would again come under the same provisions, that is, 18 weeks plus another eight weeks if the national rate of unemployment exceeds the 4 per cent.

If a person voluntarily leaves his/her employment without just cause, a disqualification of up to three weeks will be imposed. This disqualification reduces their weeks of entitlement accordingly. —A. M. Fink (Ms.), District Manager.

Reporting Restraint

Olympic Winner! Mrs. Audrey Robb is in trouble and can say "thank you" to the journalist, who would do better to learn a little restraint, the next time around. I read in the paper about her trip to Europe, the buying of a farm, etc. This kind of news is blown out of proportion. What about the right not to be bothered and able to stay incognito? In today's violent world, I would suggest the winner's name — in any kind of lottery — should not be mentioned at all. I am disgusted and would like to see a change right here with the Western Canada Lottery. It's not the best propaganda it is meant to be. All the prizes should be drawn and the winners notified. It would promote a bigger sale on account of that. —P. P., Victoria.

League Replies

In a recent edition of your paper you carried a report of a joint press conference held by Mrs. Margaret Ennenberg, president of the B.C. Home and School Federation, and Jim MacFarlan, outgoing president of the B.C. Teachers Federation. At this conference there were charges made concerning the involvement of The Canadian League of Rights in the opposition to the Family Life and Sex Education Programs being introduced into B.C. Schools.

Both Mrs. Ennenberg and Mr. MacFarlan were reported to have stated that this issue was being exploited by "a conspiracy of the right" and named The Canadian League of Rights as being the main organizer of the "conspiracy." Mr. MacFarlan went even as far as saying that we are connected to the John Birch Society in the U.S.

The Canadian League of Rights was accused of being responsible for organizing the Values Schools Movement and the various Concerned Parents Action Leagues. Also the League of Rights in co-operation with the extreme right-wing of the Social Credit party was trying to set up a new right-wing political movement in B.C. based partly on the exploitation of the sex education issue.

First of all The Canadian League of Rights just cannot take all the credit Mrs. Ennenberg and Mr. MacFarlan wish to give it. Let me make it quite clear, in no way has The Canadian League of Rights got anything to do with the Values Schools Movement, the various Concerned Parents Action Leagues or the "right-wing" or any other "wing" of the Social Credit Party.

But, we do support those parents who are against the Family Life and Sex Education program as laid down by the ministry of education and programs being developed by the various school boards over the protests of parents.

It is about time that people like Mrs. Ennenberg and Mr. MacFarlan realize that the schools are funded from taxes, and should be teaching the things that parents want taught. Mr. MacFarlan and his fellow teachers are employed by the various school boards to carry out the policies laid down by these boards. They are elected by the voters to represent their views as their paid servants. In other words, the voter should be setting policy and the school boards making sure that they employ people who will get the desired results.

As for the involvement of the "extreme right-wing" of the Social Credit Party — they will have to speak for themselves. We would be very interested to know just where they stand on this very important issue — we certainly know where the NDP stands. Maybe Bill Bennett could spell it out clearly for the people of B.C.?

The Canadian League of Rights is not connected in any way with the John Birch Society in the U.S. Mr. MacFarlan also tries to win points by stating that we have included attacks on Prime Minister Trudeau as a socialist! We must plead guilty to this, but then all we were doing was stating what Mr. Trudeau has called himself. In fact he has stated that he is a Fabian Socialist. All Mr. MacFarlan was trying to do with the help of Mrs. Ennenberg is cloud the issue.

PHILLIP D. BUTLER,
British Columbia Field Director,
The Canadian League of Rights,
Vancouver, B.C.

Self-Appointment

In Reference: "To the Point," Editor's Notebook, Victoria Times, 28 June '75.

I see you have joined the club — and would like to establish yourself as: — "A Watchdog" of the RCMP and "To Maintain the Right" of the RCMP. Self-appointed naturally. You got on "the band wagon!" Peter C. Newman of MacLean's will — no doubt — consider your writings as "Plagiarism." —W. R. Morgan, 105 Island Highway.

Criticism Misdirected

Your editorial comment under the heading "The Great Canadian Rip Off" makes interesting reading, but in my opinion the criticism is misdirected. The situation you describe would constitute a serious drain on the fund if it occurred with any great frequency. I suggest that the persons who are successful are few and far between. Human nature, being what it is, you can hardly blame people for trying — particularly when they are within the law.

Your criticism should, I think, be directed against the persons who can be charged with the responsibility for the enactment of the legislation.

You will perhaps recall that Bryce Mackasey as Minister of Labor introduced the amendments which resulted in the act now in force. Mr. Mackasey reduced the contributions required to qualify from 30 to 15. He also reduced the penalty for leaving employment without just cause from six weeks maximum to three.

The amendments introduced by Mr. Andras make no change in the qualification areas. Your so called rip-off will continue unabated. It would seem that Mr. Andras was more concerned with reducing the number of voluntary quits than he was with plugging easy money loopholes. It is an even money bet that if our present rate of unemployment continues, the increased contributions will not be enough to keep the fund out of the red. A good part of the problem stems from the fact that we no longer have an unemployment scheme. What we do have is welfare — pure but not simple. —C. McCreath, Cobble Hill, B.C.

Guards Wrong

Congratulations for publishing the article entitled "Demands by Guards Improper" on the 9th July.

As they are public servants who have instruments of force at their command, police chiefs; police associations; guards' unions and officers speaking for these probably need not be removed but should be strongly reprimanded for speaking on government policy other than as private individuals. However, it appears that they are less to blame for this unethical "throwing their weight around" than are those who have trained them. Our governments should ensure that the future training in ethics and discipline is such that only those student police graduates who clearly support the principles that police must never attempt to use their special powers to change public opinion or government policy and must always obey the law themselves.

Perhaps newspapers could lessen the weight of this pressure campaign by leaving out official titles such as police chief or president of the police federation in reports of demands from such officials or groups, merely treating the spokesman as a private citizen. —R. C. Willis, 1745 Lillian Road.

Come on Over

I am with "Concerned Voter" (Victoria Times, July 8). We do need a change in government for our province and I too am for Dr. Scott Wallace and I know many people who think as we do.

I find it rather amusing the way people in B.C. vote. They consistently vote against something instead of for something. I have met Dr. Wallace and I find him to be a man of integrity. I also attended one of his workshops and I liked what I saw and heard. Dr. Wallace is very wise and can see what ails B.C.

Come on everyone, get on the bandwagon with "Concerned Voter" and let's get a sensible government. —Another Concerned Voter.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 15, 1915

Such rapid progress is being made with the interior work on the Bay Street armory that it will be a matter of only a few months before the local militia regiments are able to move into the new quarters. The old drill hall, which has been in use since 1892, will be turned over to the provincial government so it may proceed with expansion of departmental buildings. When finished, the armory will be one of the most modern in Canada. In the basement there is a distinct innovation — a swimming pool which is tile-lined and steam-heated which may be used by the men after the fatigue of a drill or dusty march. Total cost of the armory is $315,815.

JEFF ENDRST

No Consensus at Summit

MEXICO CITY—The first International Women's Conference is now history.

Only the argument whether it was a farce or a serious attempt to arouse the consciousness of both men and women to the problem that cultural and institutional discrimination against women still goes on.

On balance, both arguments are valid, and probably true.

The one firm accomplishment of the two-week convocation in which women outnumbered men five to one was that the ladies, or more appropriately called delegate-persons, never ran out of breath despite Mexico City's 7,000-foot altitude compounded by serious pollution.

In fact, they were so eager to tell their story to each other that in the end they ran out of time for action which would have interpreted their feelings and needs through proper conference decisions.

How much of this miscalculation was emotional and how much could have been politically motivated will never be ascertained, although there were many definite guesses at the conference.

Everyone Spoke

Of the 133 official delegations, eight African liberation movements and the PLO and 23 inter-governmental bodies or specialized UN agencies, almost everyone spoke.

On the other side of the sprawling metropolis, women representing 113 non-governmental organizations from more than 80 countries, as well as several freelance outfits with more exotic pursuits such as equal rights for lesbians or more representation for Chicano or Mexican-Indian women, sounded off without any governmental restraints at what was called "the tribune."

The tribune in fact, was holding much more spirited dialogues on many woman-related subjects. But it failed in attempts to present its broad consensus to the political conference run by the United Nations.

Some felt that the UN conference started on the wrong foot by electing a man—Mexico's attorney-general Pedro Ojeda Paullada, as its president. He did not endear himself to many of the women when he later declared that there was no need for a better communication between the two concurrent conferences because "nothing new is really being said" at the tribune.

The tone, and the direction of the conference appeared to have been set by the opening speaker, Mexican President Luis Echeverria who is the author of the ambitious and very controversial "there is no woman more discriminated against than the woman who does not have bread, school or medicines for her children."

The developing countries, with few exceptions, picked up this theme and assured its acceptance by the conference in what became known as "declaration of Mexico." Basically, the declaration says that without a new world economic order, efforts to change the role of women in society would prove largely meaningless. But it also speaks of the right of nationalization, without mentioning international arbitration or compensation.

... freedom from hunger

sation. It includes Zionism among all the other proscribed UN "isms".

The bulk vote of the developing countries pushed out a counterpart declaration co-sponsored by the United States, Britain and West Germany which argued that there is nothing wrong with constructive efforts to right economic and social wrongs, but warned that development did not automatically bring equality to women in the advanced societies, and would not to the developing countries, either.

The Mexico declaration was adopted by a vote of 89 against three, with 18 abstentions, including Canada. Ms. Sylvia Galber of Canada noted that issues in the declaration have, are, and will continue to be dealt with in other forums, and that women have always been told "your problems can wait, let us first deal with the political problems." She felt that it should have been different at the women's conference.

The United States and Israel opposed the text, and so did Denmark, although it later said it had intended to abstain.

This left the UN world plan of action, setting out guidelines and recommendations for a national and international "decade of the woman."

The conference had come to Mexico City with a draft plan which was the result of three years of national, regional and UN debates. That the plan looked less than ideal was indicated by the submission of 894 amendments to it.

When after days of arguments about the first four amendments it began to look hopeless, the conference agreed to junk them all and accept the original draft, with only minor additions to the introduction and the first chapter.

This plan was adopted by consensus, although the Vatican and China immediately disassociated themselves.

The Vatican objected to references involving the rights of individual members of the family to determine issues concerning children. China did not like references to peace and disarmament—issues which it considers fraudulent because they are linked to Soviet foreign policy initiatives.

Political Arguments

There were 34 other resolutions, from "colonialism" in the Panama Canal zone to "fascism" in Chile. There was the inevitable Sino-Soviet argument about whose foreign policy is endangering the welfare of the women and the world.

Very few countries found affinity to American-style radical women's liberation movements.

In fact, there were critical voices from the Third World, countries saying that to an illiterate woman whose many children are hungry this type of sophisticated concern is meaningless. There were questions about how much the "beautiful" privileged people such as Mrs. Marcos of the Philippines, Mrs. Sadat of Egypt, or Mrs. Rabin of Israel know about the actual problems of discrimination of their sisters.

So the conference was not all about Eve. It is yet to be seen whether it was just another Babel, or whether some of it will sink in and things will start changing.

The Time Is Ripe For Oil Firms Takeover

The federal government is finally delivering on its promise to create a national public corporation in the petroleum industry by bringing before Parliament its legislation to establish Petro-Canada.

At first glance this new corporation will be a formidable addition to the federal government's apparatus for regulating the energy industries. Petro-Canada will be capitalized at $500 million, and will have the authority to borrow $1 billion. Among Canada's integrated oil companies only Imperial Oil Ltd. has a greater capitalization.

Petro-Canada will also assume control of the federal government's interest in Panarctic Oils Ltd., the consortium which for the past seven years has been conducting an extensive and encouraging program of exploration in the Canadian Arctic.

It has also been proposed that Petro-Canada take control of the federal government's $300 million investment in the Syncrude tar sands plant, and spend $100 million a year on exploration for oil and natural gas in Canada's frontier regions.

But while all these plans look impressive, they do not come to grips with the essential fact that all of the major integrated oil companies operating in Canada are foreign-owned, and that Petro-Canada's selected areas of corporate competence will be marginal to the over-all structure of Canada's petroleum industry.

The federal government should strike to the heart of the matter in Canada's petroleum industry and buy control of the three largest of the foreign-owned oil companies operating in Canada, and merge them into one corporate entity under the Petro-Canada umbrella.

Through this strategy, Petro-Canada will be the largest single element of the Canadian petroleum industry, and Canada's vital interests in the provision of oil and natural gas will no longer be at the exclusive mercy of the huge foreign integrated oil firms.

In 1973 the assets of Imperial Oil Ltd. were $2.1 billion; of Shell Canada, $1.077 billion; of Gulf Oil Canada, $1 billion. The federal budget, whose 1975-76 sum is $28.2 billion, has the financial clout to raise the necessary money to back the public takeover. For the Canadian government to assume control of these three giant firms would represent an infinitely less formidable fiscal task than the creation of the CPR in the 1870s and 1880s.

Petro-Canada should also take control of the Great Canadian Oil Sands subsidiary of Sun Oil Co. Ltd., which is Canada's only producing oil sands plant. This will help in providing Petro-Canada with the technology to undertake more extensive exploitation of the huge oil sands reserves in Alberta.

The Canadian government, by establishing Petro-Canada at the outset as a formidable integrated structure, at the heart of the Canadian petroleum industry, will only be following the precedent of every major oil producer and exporter outside of the U.S.

All the member governments of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), the international cartel, have either nationalized, or are in process of nationalizing, their oil industries. The large integrated oil firms are rapidly being thrown back on the U.S. as the last redoubt of old-fashioned buccaneering free enterprise.

On Jan. 1, 1973, the Arab nations of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi and Qatar took 25-per-cent ownership of their concessionary oil companies from the foreign corporate giants like Exxon, Shell and Mobil Oil, as down payments in a transaction which was to give them 51-per-cent national ownership by 1983. By the October, 1973, Middle East war accelerated the timetable. In 1974, both Saudi Arabia and Kuwait took a 60-per-cent ownership in their concessionary firms, and by December, 1974, Saudi Arabia was signing an agreement to buy control of the remaining 40 per cent.

In July, 1973, the Iranian government took full ownership of its oil industry and its public oil firm, the National Iranian Oil Co., has been extending itself beyond Iran. It has taken a 50-per-cent interest in an oil refinery being built by Ashland Oil in the U.S., and is reported to be negotiating to buy a 10-per-cent interest in British Petroleum.

The earliest successful national public oil company is Pemex, Petroleos Mexicanos, established in 1938 to take over the foreign-owned oil fields in Mexico. By the beginning of 1975, it was producing over 750,000 barrels of oil a day, of which 125,000 barrels a day were being exported, and it was predicting that by late 1975, newly discovered fields in Yucatan would push daily output to over one million barrels. By 1973 it had sales of $1,564 billion a year, assets of $2.93 billion, and employed 77,794.

National oil firms on the Pemex model have sprung up throughout South America, and within a short time the major share of oil entering international trade will be produced by national state oil companies.

Even the large consuming nations of Europe have been expanding and creating national oil firms. The French government owns the ELF-Erap group and holds a controlling interest in the large Cie Francaise des Petroles. These firms by 1973 had annual sales totalling almost $7 billion. In Italy, the state petroleum firm, ENI in 1973 bought the Italian operations of Royal-Dutch Shell, with three refineries and 4,500 retail stations, to add to the 7,000 retail outlets it already owned.

Shell Oil refinery in Montreal . . . $4 billion in assets

The West German government has bought controlling interests in most of the large remaining German-owned oil refining and oil distribution firms in West Germany. It now controls Gelsenberg AG, Veba GA, and Aral, firms whose assets include oil refineries, petrochemical plants, and 10,000 retail outlets, and whose sales are now over $10 billion a year.

The huge engineering firms serving the oil industry — such as Bechtel, Lummus, Koppers, Fluor — are eager to provide their services to the national state oil firms. They have found that their credit is secure and that they pay their bills punctually.

The argument that the large integrated oil companies have a monopoly on petroleum technology is without foundation since they buy their equipment and plant off the shelf from the large engineering firms.

The Canadian government is right to establish Petro-Canada to create a Canadian corporate presence in the petroleum industry. No nation can afford to repossess untrammeled trust in the good faith of the large, integrated oil companies, and no nation does. In most nations of the modern world the large, integrated firms are being displaced by national firms.

But, if Petro-Canada is to remain something more than a noble experiment gone wrong it is necessary that it be provided with the economic heft to sustain a dominant role in the vital petroleum industry. It must take control of the three largest foreign-owned, integrated oil firms, and of Great Canadian Oil Sands.

Then it will be able to do its required job and Canadian policy will be brought into line with that of almost every other oil-producing nation.

Why Art Is Out of Touch

By LEROY F. AARONS

The directors of some of the world's most famous art museums gathered in Los Angeles recently for a bit of mutual breast beating about how out of touch art institutions are with the masses. But few if any had a glimmer of what to do about it.

"The museum idea (in the mind of the vast public) is still that of a space where eternity unfolds, and we are seen as the guardians," worried Werner Hofmann, director of the Kunstmuseum in Hamburg, Germany. "And we are at fault for that."

"Art goes over the head of most people," except for a special "subculture," noted Michael Compton, keeper of Exhibition and Education at the Tate Gallery in London. "I just don't know how to solve this."

"Art museum-going doesn't belong to the habits of the working class," bemoaned Pontus Hulten, director of visual arts of the Centre Beaubourg, Paris.

These remarks were made during a series of panel sessions at the four-day 70th annual meeting of the American Association of Museums. Participants included the leading tastemakers of the international modern art scene.

These individuals, powerful in their own field, seemed not only bemused by the dilemma of art and its alienation from the popular culture, but curiously paralyzed by their own elitist orientation and unable to do anything to change the situation.

The panelists gave considerable lip service to the need to open avenues to a broader cross section of the public. The message resounded.

Said the Tate Gallery's Compton: "A large proportion of the public, 99.9 per cent, sees the whole of contemporary art as a conspiracy . . . (and it is true that) among the 100,000 people in the (art world) subculture there is an amazing degree of agreement . . . The purpose of modern art is to validate careers of curators . . . (The) subculture validates itself rather like a religious group validates itself."

Fine, as far as it went. But what to do about it? Apparently not much. First of all, the directors seemed to agree, the taste of the masses is usually misinformed, banal and potentially dangerous.

Director Richard Oldenburg noted that the most popular painting at New York's Museum of Modern Art is Andrew Wyeth's realist "Christina's World," the sort of painting that could get out of hand if allowed to run amok. You can't simply substitute what the public responds to for the "terribly immediately" for the reasoned professional judgment of the profession subculture, claimed Oldenburg.

And Compton relayed the view that the English working class, at least, has a skewed sense of history (for them, he said, the Victorian Age "ended in 1945 and began approximately 400 A.D." and prehistoric times "ended with the Romans and included the dinosaurs"). Art "goes over the head of these kinds of people," he concluded.

Perhaps the most astonishing aspect of these sessions was that none of the artists, museum people and other spectators seemed at all scandalized by the direction of the discussion. The panels were long, often tedious, and the temptation was to dismiss them with a yawn.

But these are the people who helped set (along with the small clique of dealers, critics and collectors) the fashions, tastes, values and prices for contemporary art, and the art field is no longer a rarified playground for esthetes—it has become a business. That's power.

As one observer said cogently, "These people (the museum directors) all like the same artists, and put on shows as much to please each other as anyone else. They are interchangeable. With masks, you couldn't tell them apart."

The situation, Michael Compton conceded when talking about the exclusionary class system inside the art subculture, is "frightening."

'Mind Control' Defended

By VICTOR COHN

Behavior modification, which has been attacked as cruel "mind control," is actually a "marked success" in helping many persons lead more normal lives, the U.S. government's chief psychiatrist maintained last week.

Despite the controversy, it is now being used on some 10,000 patients of psychotherapists and 30,000 to 50,000 inmates of hospitals, prisons and schools, Dr. Bertram Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, reported.

Also, he said, NIMH continues to finance $2 million worth of research this year in the method, and another $1 million worth is being financed by federal alcohol and drug abuse agencies.

Brown told a news conference there have been abuses of the method. He alluded to a recent revelation that the Central Intelligence Agency had given persons LSD without their knowledge, leading to one death.

"Any therapy can be used or misused," Brown said. Among behavior modification's greatest successes, he said, are treatment of sufferers of four types of disorder formerly hard to control.

● "Head-bangers" and other self-destructive mental patients.

● Phobias — persons who fear such things as flying, snakes and high places.

● Compulsives, who engage in repetitive, irrational behavior including constant handwashing or excessive house-cleaning.

● The sexually dysfunctional, especially those suffering from impotence, frigidity and premature ejaculation. They have been helped by what Brown called "the successful behavior modification" techniques pioneered by sex researchers William Masters and Virginia Johnson.

The method has also been helpful in some cases of schizophrenia and depression, he said. It is being used with some good effects to help alcoholics, drug abusers and those on reducing diets.

Doctors are using it to make asthmatic children less anxious so they need fewer drugs and to treat anxiety-linked insomnia and high blood pressure.

Behavior modification seeks to change a person's way of reacting or doing things by affecting his environment. This often means applying what is called "positive" or "negative reinforcement" — in effect rewards or punishments. Food often is used as a reward; common punishments include mild electric shocks or loss of certain privileges.

IT'S A BAD LAW

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

If anyone wanted proof what a dangerous piece of legislation Pierre Trudeau's Hate Literature Act can be, it was all there last week in Toronto. The law was used with precisely the same abuse its critics feared when it was steered through Parliament five years ago to the misty-eyed huzzahs of tunnel-vision civil libertarians.

It was used, it could be argued, like the old vagrancy laws were used in their day, to sweep out of sight people who in the consideration of police would be offensive to some proper group or another. In this case, specifically, a couple of members of a far-out, anti-American left group and their Yankee Go Home handbills who, it was thought, might be an affront to visiting Shriners.

The hate literature charges were laid. And five days later the Crown Attorney for York County announced—with an embarrassing absence of explanation—the charges would be withdrawn. An act of wise hindsight that could be surpassed only by the federal government's announcement that the hate literature law will be withdrawn.

The criminal law cannot be used to legislate against ideas, however crackpot or offensive they might be. It cannot be used to take away the public's common sense to determine whether ideas are crackpot or offensive and should be ignored. And the criminal law cannot contain such vague, subjective language as the hate literature legislation does, which allows authorities to make whatever use of it they will.

Tell It Like It Is, Infocan

After I aired a small, old bungle by Information Canada, its deputy director-general — a former ad-man named Eric Miller — wrote to tell me what a lousy reporter I was. Infocan was now doing a really swell job all across the big land. "The people of Canada" knew this. Why didn't I?

Miller seemed to believe that publicizing old mistakes by government agencies was lousy reporting. Out-dated. Gosh, do you suppose he's right? And all this time, I thought Gerda Mun-singer, Watergate, and the Pentagon Papers were good stories. Heck, I even thought Judas Iscariot was a good story.

Well, it all shows how wrong you can be, even after 20 years in journalism. It must have been Miller's intuitive understanding of news values that got him his job as second-in-command and sometimes public defender of Information Canada.

And clearly, his powers of intuition are astounding. He knows exactly what "the people of Canada" think about Infocan; and it is all good. Maybe Information Canada should run for public office.

Anyway, Miller seemed so high on Infocan's new age of efficiency I thought the least I could do to make up was give his Halifax enquiry centre a try. I didn't want to be too tough on anybody. I just wanted to know how much money we "people of Canada" are paying Senators these days.

Here's what Information Canada's Halifax office told me: Senators get $29,300 as their basic annual salary, plus a "seasonal allowance of $24,000," plus travel expenses of $5,300 a year: a fat total of $58,600.

Now one reason why Infocan has regional enquiry centres is to save us people the cost and nuisance of phoning Ottawa for routine government information, and, to prove how terrific this service is, the agency keeps a record of how many questions it fields.

In other words, the answer I got from the Halifax office will make its own tiny contribution to the figure of half-a-million (or however many) enquiries that Infocan will have handled in 1975, and, when someone opens his yap in public to criticize the agency, Miller may feel free to trot out the impressive total to support his claim that the outfit is satisfying "the people of Canada."

If 500,000 Canadians get answers from Infocan enquiry centres every year, well, doesn't that prove its value right there? It does only if you judge worth not by the quality of the message, but by the quantity of those you'd like to think you're reaching. Ad-men are often inclined to do that.

The quality of the message, in my case, was low. I would even go so far as to suggest it was an example of lousy reporting. You see, senators do not get $58,600 a year for being senators.

The figure struck me as inflated, even by Parliament's standards of self-reward, and I therefore did what I would have done way back in the bad old days before Infocan brought efficiency to the boob-docks:

I suffered the cost and nuisance of phoning Ottawa for routine government information. I called the government's big umbrella number. A switchboard operator gave me the doorman at the Senate entrance to the Parliament buildings. The doorman told me to call the Senate's personnel branch, and hung up.

Again, I suffered the cost and nuisance of phoning Ottawa for routine government information but, this time, it came in a flash. Somebody's bright secretary laid the facts on me in ten seconds: Senators get $24,000 a year, plus a tax-free $5,300 for travel, for a cosy total of $29,300. Infocan had doubled the figure. It had been merely 100 per cent wrong.

None of this throws me into paroxysms of rage. My Infocan misinformant was most courteous and, anyway, nobody's perfect. Two calls to Ottawa won't break me. Why, they probably cost less than one-thousandth of what I pay Ottawa every year to help provide among other things, salaries for Miller and a few hundred thousand other "people of Canada" who happen to be on the federal payroll.

Moreover, I don't generalize from my own experience to conclude Infocan is disastrously inefficient. I ask only that its brass show similar restraint with regard to generalizations.

Correcting specific lies and errors is anyone's right, but I ask the journalists at Infocan's more exalted levels to spend no more of their high-paid time laying on us journalists their self-serving theories about what's good and what's lousy in reporting. Talk like that might just hurt the agency's image.

I ask, too, that they not try to snow us with extravagant pronouncements about the national approval they're enjoying. Talk like that might just give some of us "people of Canada" the idea that Information Canada, far from becoming the Liberal propaganda tool so many Tories and newspapers once pretended to fear, is actually becoming a propaganda tool for Information Canada.

Lowe...posing with paintings in Humboldt St. gallery

DREAMSCAPES BLOSSOM IN A MAN'S MIND...

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Recovering from a serious illness, Victoria artist Stephen Lowe is again producing Chinese paintings appreciated by art lovers in all parts of the world.

As a start, the 37-year-old artist is holding an exhibition of his paintings at his 637 Humboldt Street studio, starting Tuesday, having turned down invitations to show in Ottawa, Toronto, New York and San Francisco.

He admits things have changed since he first came to the city 19 years ago from Hong Kong as an unknown.

"People were interested in Oriental art then but not too many understood it," he said. "Now there is a much wider understanding of Chinese paintings. I think we are all getting to be more internationally minded."

Lowe says his style has undergone some changes over the years. At first his watercolors were mostly of flowers and birds — subjects he excels in — but in the past five years he has concentrated more on landscapes.

He noted that some people think his landscapes are actual scenes in China.

"But this is not so," he said. "I paint what I feel and what I see in my mind's eye. The pictures and compositions are original."

He brushes aside the view of some critics who say that nature dominates art in Chinese landscape paintings.

"If Chinese paintings have a message it is that man is part of nature and should work and live in harmony with nature," he said.

Detail from one of Lowe's paintings.

SECOND BID FAILS FOR ANGELA

TORONTO (UPI) — Angela Kondrak, 15, was exhausted but not disheartened by her second failure to conquer Lake Ontario. She is going ahead with plans to swim the English Channel next month.

The Toronto schoolgirl said Sunday "I'm disappointed I didn't achieve my original goal of conquering the lake, but I'm still going to try to swim the channel."

Saturday night, Angela fell three miles short of completing a 32-mile crossing of Lake Ontario from Youngstown, N.Y., to the Toronto lakefront. She was in the water for more than 20 hours before being pulled out.

She said she plans to make the 22-mile channel swim on the first good-weather day after Aug. 14 — if she finds sponsors to cover her costs.

Her coach, Art Dufresne, said he has not lost confidence in the girl and that she had a good chance of completing the channel swim, because the weather does not change as suddenly in the channel as it does on Lake Ontario.

A sudden worsening of the weather proved Angela's undoing Saturday, just as it had last year in her first attempt to swim the lake when she got to within a mile of the Toronto shore.

This time, a stiff easterly breeze sprang up with about nine miles to go—and with the Toronto skyline tantalizingly close. The wind produced four-foot swells, which slowed Angela down, hampered her breathing and forced her to use energy reserves.

Angela said a drop in the water temperature from 23 degrees at the start of the swim to 17 degrees when she was hauled out contributed to her failure.

The girl was taken immediately to a hospital and kept overnight for observation, but was released Sunday morning. She said she felt fine, "but a little spent."

Angela said she would not try to swim Lake Ontario again.

Israelis Aid Arab Vessel

TEL AVIC (AP)—An Israeli navy ship went to the aid of a Lebanese cargo vessel that was out of fuel and adrift in the Mediterranean, the Israeli military command said Sunday.

A statement said the Israeli ship transferred fuel to the 800-ton El Waid on Saturday as it was drifting with a cargo of automobiles about 20 miles northwest of El Arish.

ROUND-ISLAND BOATERS SWAM FOR THEIR LIVES

Two good swimmers saved their own lives Thursday night after a planned kayak round-trip of Vancouver Island sank in bad weather and heavy water eight days after the Victoria father and son set out from Willows Beach.

Max Seelenmayer, 62, of 1980 Fort, and his son Max Jr., swam the frigid waters of Seymour Narrows just north of Campbell River for 2½ hours after big waves overturned their 17½-foot kayak and threw them into whirlpools.

The two surfaced close to one another and the remains of their craft and supplies then swam to shore from 8 to 10:30 p.m.

Spotted by a passing tug the next morning, the adventurers were taken to Campbell River where they caught a bus for home.

The two said their swimming ability saved their lives. They added they may try the journey again in the future.

Indians Bounce Pair Who Favor Funding

VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of the British Columbia Association of Non-Status Indians Sunday voted a lack of confidence in two of the group's members who favor government funding.

Fred House, association president, said Doris Ronnenberg, vice-president and George Brown, executive member, "will remain in name as members but I don't expect them to show up at any meetings."

The association recently turned down about $1 million in funding which included $17,000 a year for House's salary.

Ronnenberg was in charge of the association's health and welfare program and received a salary from government grants.

Brown is president of the Burns Lake Native Development Corp. Which also gets government funds.

Cessnas Crash

TRAIL (CP) — Two Langley people were rescued unharmed Saturday after their single-engine Cessna 150 crashed six miles east of here.

David Hay, about 24, and Heather Burns, 21, were flying to Langley from Medicine Hat when the crash occurred.

A Buffalo aircraft from Comox found them in the rugged terrain east of Trail after the Cessna was reported missing.

Meanwhile, three Oregon men were injured Saturday when their single-engine Cessna 177 crashed soon after take-off from the Tsuniah lake airport.

Joe Hillis was in hospital in Williams Lake in serious condition. K. Shidler was also in hospital but was not in serious condition. D. Harris was treated and released.

Released by Mistake, Man Returns to Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 24-year-old man refused bail on a murder punishable by life imprisonment charge mistakenly released by city police, turned himself in after briefly kissing his mother, fiancée and baby daughter.

Police inspector Sid Devries would say only that an investigation will be held.

"He had enough sense to turn himself back in — that will certainly go to his credit," Insp. Devries said in an interview.

The suspect, Leonard La-

Forge, said he was released even after he repeatedly told police he was being held on a murder charge.

His release came after a separate charge of theft of $300 was stayed in provincial court, he said.

"The charge was stayed because the witness didn't show up for the second time," he said in an interview before court appearance on the other charge, and knew he was charged with murder, he added.

LaForge said he was taken down to the third floor booking office where he was again told he was free.

"I waited around because I still thought they were joking," LaForge said.

"When they saw I was still there, one of them said: 'What are you waiting around for.'"

"I said I was waiting to go back upstairs (to the detention cell) and he said: 'Don't you know where the door is.'"

LaForge said he told the officers he didn't know where the door was so two police escorted him to it and put him out on the street.

Three-Paper Purchase

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sterling Newspapers Ltd. has purchased three more British Columbia newspapers.

Company president Jack Radler declined to say how much the North Vancouver company paid Today Publications of Cranbrook for the Cranbrook Daily Townsman, the Kimberley Daily Bulletin and the Weekly Courier Town and Country.

The company now owns 13 newspapers in B.C., including the Alaska Highway News, the Prince Rupert Daily News, the Alberni Times, the Nelson Daily News and the Trail Times as well as The Citizen of North and West Vancouver and the Richmond Review, two of the largest weekly newspapers in the province.

The owners of Sterling entered the newspaper business when they bought the daily Sherbrooke Record in Quebec about 10 years ago. The firm began buying papers in B.C. three years ago.

TENANTS BLAST HOUSING CHIEF

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and District Public Housing Tenants Association has called for the removal of David Davies as chairman of the British Columbia Housing Management Commission.

In a letter to Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson, the association says Davies has not carried out the department policy of offering cheap public housing for low-income earners.

The letter says public housing projects have not been properly upgraded and maintained.

The organization says it represents 12 of the 20 public housing projects in B.C., or about 2,800 of 4,000 units.

Association spokesman Bill

Cross said the commission has been ignoring its policy of requiring low-income earners to pay no more than 25 per cent of their income of housing rather than the full market value of their units.

The association says sometimes private housing is cheaper than housing offered by the commission.

The Nose in the Theatre —A Film Break-Through

The motion picture trade papers are viewing tepidly the advent of "the smellies" — two producing companies now being in a race to be the first to assault our noses — and I think the critics are lamentably short on imagination.

They laughed at the talkies, too, remember. Now there's one in most living rooms.

For myself I'm so confident that Scent-o-Vision will be a smash that I'm planning to apply for the job of reviewer. My qualifications are cast-iron. I've got the biggest nose in the office.

What's caused the lack of enthusiasm for flicks-with-a-fragrance, I suppose, is the fact that the power to smell has somehow become the most under-rated of the senses.

We take it for granted, in the first place, because it is so rarely lost or impaired as sight, hearing or speech often are and, secondly, because there's so little in the urban aroma that's anything but nasty. A man who opened his nostrils joyously might drop dead with a head full of carbon monoxide.

The trend, indeed, is to eliminate or camouflage every honest odor of our lives and, unhappily, the good goes with the bad.

Millions are spent in sprays, soaps, salves, sachets and aerosol mists to protect the delicate olfactory from noxious fumes and so an organ that was once a sensitive instrument has become obsolescent.

"The Smellies" will, I hope, rescue us from this dismal fate and save us from a world permeated with Air-Wick.

Scent-o-Vision, itself, seems such a simple and logical idea that I can't see how it will miss.

A doo-jigger beside each seat in the theatre will squirt a series of essences synchronized with the action on the screen. The hero and heroine are at breakfast? You'll get a fast whiff of bacon and eggs and coffee. The siren in her boudoir? Her perfume will massage your nostrils, driving strong men wild.

The critics are saying that this will prove merely distracting, but, of course, that will depend entirely on the artistry of the producers.

If the theatre-going public is able to adjust itself to the off-screen presence of a full symphony orchestra, setting the mood for a scene through music, then surely it will accept the more subtle suggestion that comes from the hidden atomizer.

How much more effective will be the perennial chase in the westerns, for example, when you've a beak full of real dust? How much more graphic will be the Godfather films when the acrid effluvia of cordite engulfs you? Think of the love sequences in the hay — with the nasal passages aroused by real hay!

Why may we leave the Cinema of the future not merely sated with emotions, but with a whole new set of allergies.

I am, however, more interested in the technique of the second experimenting company.

Instead of trying for immediate visual associations—the see-it-smell-it formula of Scent-o-Vision—it will attempt to heighten the emotions by more insinuating aromas.

Though the method is being kept a secret, the producers claim to have developed scents which will suggest joy, sorrow, fear, hatred and love, among other emotional responses.

This, too, is not as far-fetched as it would seem at first sniff. Smells do have the power of evoking such responses.

There is something of sorrow and certainly of nostalgia in the fragrance of burning autumn leaves. If you've ever passed through the fields of lavender in the south of France you need look no farther for the scent of romance. The resinous smell of a pine forest surely suggests the quality of peace just as the musty smell of an old and deserted house may suggest gloom or despair.

Just how you'd distill a perfume to convey a feeling of fear or hatred and not have your customers streaming from the theatre is a problem I gladly leave to the inventors. Yet the smell of fear and the smell of hatred are, I think, capable of definition.

Yes, mark my words, you'll see the day when a theatre will proudly proclaim, "It Smells!" and pack them in.

Citizen Award To Entertainer

GRAY

A man who has been entertaining Greater Victoria senior citizens for years received the annual good citizen award of the Native Sons of B.C. Post No. 1 on Sunday.

Donald Gray, 80, of 2378 Rosario received his award at a presentation in the bandshell at Beacon Hill Park following a band concert.

Gray has for the past 12 years organized and conducted variety concerts for Silver Threads centres in the city, and has also entertained senior citizens groups at Grant Manor, Glengarry Private Hospital, George Road Hospital, and elsewhere.

Man Injured On Hang Glider

Lloyd Matthews, 2424 Wark St., is suffering from a fractured nose and left wrist, possible head injuries and multiple cuts.

Saanich police said a change in wind direction caused Matthews to plummet to the bottom of the pit at about noon Sunday. Matthews was with three other men at the time of the accident.

Police said all four men have used the pit on previous occasions for hang-gliding and were warned not to. The pit, fenced in behind locked gates, is the property of the municipality of Saanich.

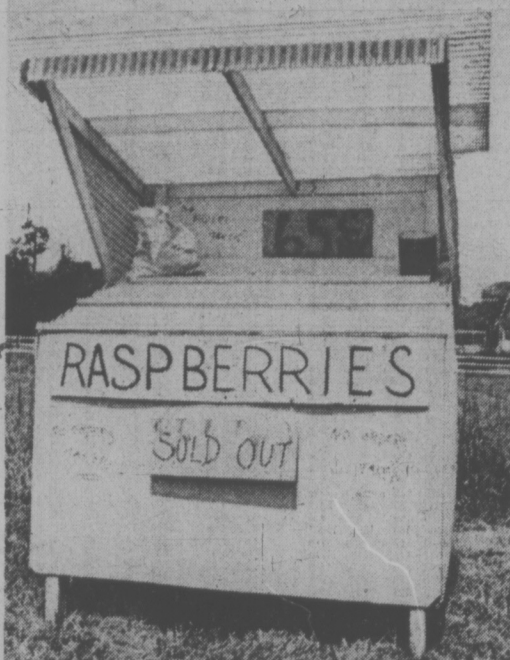

A police spokesman said charges of trespassing on city property may be laid against the four.

Panic-buyers emptied bread shelves at Victoria corner stores during the weekend, stocking up for a threatened bakers strike that won't materialize—at least this week.

"They thought the bakers were going on strike," manager Sammy Low of the Hillside Low Cost Market said today.

Truants To Get Boot?

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

A new get-tough policy on student truancy will be proposed to Greater Victoria school board trustees tonight by board administration.

The proposal is that the board suspend any pupil whose unexcused absences are hurting his schoolwork, "or where a disproportionate amount of a teacher's time is needed to maintain such a pupil in his (her) classes."

The suspension would occur only "where the principal concerned has made a reasonable effort to work with the pupil and his (her) parents or guardians."

Deputy superintendent Dr. John Wiens said today the board has no firm policy at present, and principals rarely suspend a student who is continually absent.

"They (principals and teachers) just try and try and try until it gets ridiculous. And the kids that should be responding are laughing about it," he said.

"We've just decided, if you're that disinterested (in school) maybe we should throw you out altogether."

In its report to the board's administration committee, board administration said: "During the past few years, schools in this district have tried in many ways to make school more useful, appealing and relevant."

"Among other things, young people have been given more freedom to make decisions. The majority has accepted this challenge in a very responsible manner, but a minority is abusing every privilege which is extended."

The result, said the report, is that teachers, principals, counsellors, psychologists and others devote great amounts of time to these few students.

"With the further result that the responsible majority is often neglected."

The new policy, developed with the consultation of school principals, is aimed at dealing with one of the major problem areas caused by these truants.

Wiens said most students are attending school better than a few years ago. The problem isn't with them, he said, but with the extreme cases.

The proposed policy comes in the wake of last month's reports from 42 local schools to Education Minister Eileen Daily on classroom management (discipline), discrimination, communication and evaluation.

The reports, prepared by teachers, parents and students, voiced concern and even apprehension about a decline in student behaviour, and the lack of meaningful punishment for serious behaviour problems.

"The schools feel that existing procedure for removal of disruptive students is unrealistically slow and bureaucratic," said a summary of the reports. "Much damage is done in the interim."

ARSON SUSPECTED IN FIRE

Arson is suspected in a fire that did $4,000 to $5,000 damage early this morning to a vacant house at 634 Dupplin.

Saanich Fire Chief Harold Gains said firemen found several attempts to set fire to the house throughout the building.

Firemen arrived shortly after 2 a.m. to find the kitchen in flames and the rest of the house full of smoke. The blaze was under control in about 15 minutes, Gains said.

He said the house, owned by Frank Wille of 940 Lake View, was empty and due for demolition.

Of a dozen corner stores in Victoria, surveyed, only KC Market at Bowker and Cadboro Bay reported bread sales were normal.

Stephen Young, manager of Young's Low Cost, said his store was sold out even though he received more bread than usual last week.

By AB KENT

Roadside produce stands in Saanich have withered from a once-flourishing cottage enterprise to a handful of scattered outlets before the inroads of inflation and thievery.

In one five-mile stretch of country last week, the Times found only 10 stands, two of which are operated as year-round businesses, four were abandoned and another appeared closed.

Former operators complained of rising costs of production making it unprofitable to compete with stores and supermarkets, or of children who steal and motorists who help themselves to two bunches for the price of one.

An exception is the couple that has operated a vegetable, geranium and cut flower stand for most of the 20 years they have lived at 4265 Blenkinsop, raising the produce in their garden.

Mrs. John Tindell explained:

"We're old-age pensioners. It helps us along but we don't make an awful big profit. Everything's up—fertilizer, the water bill—and we've cut down on the size of the garden."

For the Tindells, since their family has been grown up, the stand is a hobby, "something for us to do. We love it. It's hard work but you wouldn't do it if you didn't like it."

"When you get out in the garden you forget all your troubles," Mrs. Tindell said.

As for dishonest passersby, she admits there is theft by the occasional motorist: "We trust the people's honesty, and some are, some aren't."

Mrs. Donald Galey, 4818 Cordova Bay Road, said her family had given up selling vegetable produce because it is not possible to leave a stand unattended any more.

Her family used to do it when they were young, but theft is too much a risk today for untended stands, she felt.

"There was a time when you could get away with it, but not anymore," Mrs. Galey said, regretting that people are becoming less trustworthy.

While it lasted, the Galey's stand provided the family with some welcome extra income, and "I guess we enjoyed it while we were in it," Mrs. Galey said.

Today the family concentrates on its eggs and poultry business and confines roadside sales to two days a week. Another egg producer is

Donald Harwood, 4139 Blenkinsop, which is also a full-time business with sales made from the family garage, not a roadside stand.

Mrs. Harwood said the family has 5,000 hens and is able to sell eggs 5-10 cents a dozen below store prices. But they can't compete with supermarket specials.

The James O'Brien family, 4696 West Saanich, started a stand as a hobby and ran it for a couple of years, but gave it up because it became too much work for the profit derived.

Mrs. Gerardus De Greef, 4671 West Saanich, mainly sold cut flowers with some vegetables, and operated for many years before becoming discouraged.

"More and more people came to steal; they took the flowers without putting any money in the box down below," she said.

Critics of roadside selling say they can get the same produce in a store at no more than the rural price without having to waste gasoline to shop.

From place to place and time to time, depending on the season, that may be true. But most operators claim

'It helps us along,
but profits

their prices are lower than downtown, and if they weren't who would take the trouble to drive into the country to buy?

The Times noticed buyers at one vegetable stand to be astute shoppers who would not make a purchase that cost more than it would at Woodward's or Safeway's.

They also appreciate that stand-bought produce is likely to be fresher than that found in markets.

The family stand at 1360 McKenzie had carrots, beets, lettuce, radishes, cucumber, onions, celery, tomatoes, and potatoes and was doing a brisk business Thursday with prices about five cents a pound lower than downtown.

But not all the produce was raised at home. Some was obtained from greenhouse operators in the district.

Hothouse tomatoes, for example, were offered at 50 cents a pound, considerably

Streamlined Bus Service Promised by Lorimer

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

A re-arrangement of bus services is in store for the Greater Victoria area, Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said today.

In an interview, he said transit planning in the Victoria area "has historically been very bad, and the whole system needs to be redone."

There is a lot of waste in the network's operation, with adequate bus service on some lines, but almost no service on other lines, he said.

Except for the start of two additional lines last year, there has been no change in the transit system's operation since 1952. Lorimer blamed the poor transit planning on the previous Social Credit government's administration.

Addition of 25 new buses to the service have been earmarked for Victoria and will be fed into the system when this year's order comes through in "the near future."

But depending on the results of a study into the network, all the buses may not be needed if more efficient use can be made of vehicles currently in operation here.

This year's B.C. order for buses will add some 180 vehicles to the fleet, and the government's planned fast-bus service to the Saanich Peninsula and a park and ride service for civil servants in the legislative precinct hang on the delivery of buses.

The park and ride service which will eventually transport civil servants from parking lots on the perimeter of Victoria to their offices in the less than store prices that have recently hit 85 cents.

The family did not wish to be identified and explained the stand was run for the benefit of the children to give them some earnings during school holidays.

The mother could not explain why other operators had declined, other than to suggest their prices may have been too high.

Children of the Frank Cadoretti family, 1642 Blair, offered vegetables and flowers by the bunch—50 cents for Swiss chard, 25 cents for lettuce and flowers and 15 cents for parsley and chives—and complained that business was slow.

Jim Cooper, 7046 East Saanich, who operated a stand for 25 years, said this was the first year he hadn't done so, attributing the decision to rising costs of production.

According to B.C. Federation of Agriculture, the bulk of roadside vending is done at orchards in the Okanagan fruit belt, which remains viable.

Although there is virtually no regulation or record-keeping directed toward produce stands in B.C., the federation keeps an eye on the industry to the extent that it can say stands are not especially profitable, taking the time spent into consideration.

Generally they are small, family-run and geared to crop seasons, and generally the selling prices are lower than stores.

An exception is early fruit which can be imported by grocery chains at prices lower than a producer can afford to sell at.

The federation says roadside sales account for a small part of the total crop in B.C.; for example 30 per cent of all strawberries go to the processing industry, and only a small portion of the balance is sold on stands.

On the other hand, about half the peach crop goes to people who drive out to the orchards—sometimes going all the way from the Lower Mainland—to get what they want.

Ken Guenther... first year at stand core area also depends on purchase by the provincial government of suitable sites for parking lots.

Lorimer said the province is investigating purchase of three lots but declined to specify the areas.

On another topic the minister said hopefully by the fall the province will be able to reinstate a monthly bus pass system for commuters in the Sooke area travelling via Pacific Commuter Ltd.

He said weekly and monthly passes, previously available before the government took over the transit system operated by Southwest Coach Ltd., will likely offer a 15 per cent to 20 per cent reduction in the daily rate.

Cancellation of the passes sparked an outcry from Sooke area residents.

Negotiations have been going on since March in the dispute being mediated by University of B.C. industrial relations professor Mark Thompson.

Garden City Pensioners and Victoria Pearlies will both pick up cheques to further their services and activities.

The Pensioners, 941 Pandora, receive $6,000 to organize film showings, music events, arts and crafts classes and bingo games at their centre.

Group members will also prepare their own song sheet and a newsletter.

Pearlies' members receive $2,176 to help finance visits to hospitals, nursing homes and charity fund-raising functions where they entertain.

New York

The stock market edged upward at New York with a boost from news of a further sharp decline in business inventories.

Brokers traced the advance to the U.S. government's report that business inventories fell by a record $2.97 billion in May. Such a sharp decline is good built up in the distribution system theoretically clears the way for resumed production.

But favorable response to that development was offset to a great extent by the spread of a prime rate increase, to 7 $\frac{1}{2}$  from seven per cent, to several banks in Pittsburgh, Chicago and California.

New York's First National City Bank was the first to post such an increase, on Friday.

Westinghouse Electric, which came in with higher second-quarter earnings, picked up  $\frac{1}{4}$  to \$18 $\frac{1}{2}$  in active trading.

Early Settlement Unlikely At Inco Plant in Sudbury

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The outlook for an early settlement of the five-day strike at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco) remains uncertain as the 13,500 employees began hearing details Sunday of the tentative agreement signed Thursday in Toronto.

Negotiators for Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, ended a three-week silence Saturday morning at a meeting of about 300 shop stewards who voted almost unanimously to reject the agreement.

Reaction was mixed Sunday among the 2,500 men who attended the first of eight membership meetings.

One steward said the general feeling of the men is that the contract was not particularly good, even though the terms are fairly close to their bargaining team's last proposal.

"I guess they just didn't ask for enough," he said. "That's what it comes down to."

The 1,250 members of the union's Local 6300 at Port Colborne, seven miles south of Welland, went on strike last Wednesday, but returned to work Thursday when told a settlement had been reached.

The settlement would give a 90-cent-an-hour wage increase in the first year to bring the base rate to $5.45, and 20 cents an hour in each of the second and third years.

Cost-of-living increases of one cent an hour for each .35 rise in the consumer price index are included and, if the annual rate of inflation runs at 10 per cent for next three years, about $1.25 would be added.

With all items combined, the settlement would give a laborer $218 for a 40-hour week during the first year.

Other gains would include improved vacation pay, increased accident and sickness benefits, job security, union rights and grievances, leaves, training, job evaluation and an improved dental plan.

Monthly pensions at age 65, with 30 years service, would increase to $610 from $450.

Benefits to workers with 20 years experience retiring at age 55 would be $299 a month.

Vacation clauses would be altered so workers would receive five weeks of paid holidays after 25 years and six weeks after 30 years. The existing provision is for five weeks after 30 years.

An 11th statutory holiday would be added and Sunday shift premiums would increase to $1 an hour from 75 cents.

The settlement does not mention Inco's 3,700 pensioners, who are not included in the bargaining unit, although union negotiators say they received verbal promise that all current pensioners will receive a $30-a-month increase in January, 1976.

AUTO WORKERS OFF JOB

DETROIT (AP) — About 287,000 of the 712,000 blue-collar auto workers in the United States will be off the job today — more than half of them due to model changeover or summer vacation periods.

Some 135,000 hourly employees are on scheduled, paid vacations this week — most of them at Ford Motor Co. — while 133,000 remain on indefinite layoff. Another 17,500 are on temporary layoff, mostly due to model changeovers.

All of Ford's 17 U.S. assembly plants and 31 of its 46 manufacturing plants will be shut this week for paid vacation shutdowns. Ford, which has 18,000 workers on indefinite layoff, said 132,000 of its blue collar employees will get the week off with pay. Some 5,000 non-seniority employees will be on layoff during the company-wide shutdown.

It is the first time Ford is shutting all its assembly plants for summer vacation breaks. The firm said its manufacturing plants, which also were down last week, reopen July 21, while the assembly plants will remain closed until July 28.

Pattern Shows In Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — The reluctance of employers to hire women, the young, minority group workers and persons from economically-poor regions is a major reason for the co-existence of unemployment and job vacancies, a study prepared for the Ontario labor department says.

The survey, prepared by research economists M. L. Skolnick and Farid Siddiqui of the provincial department, says the availability of jobless benefits has been over-emphasized as a cause of the unemployment-vacancy problems.

A summary of the survey is reported in federal labor department's June issue of the Labor Gazette.

The researchers, studying the Ontario labor market in 1974, found a large increase in the rate of rejection by employers of job applicants who were referred by Canadian Manpower centres. This was at a time when there were many job vacancies and unemployment was high.

In mid-1974, the percentage of persons hired after being referred to employers stood at 29.3 per cent, down from 45.2 per cent in 1968.

The researchers concluded that most unemployed persons in Ontario who sought jobs were felt to be not worthy of hire by employers. Employers were reluctant to treat available labor as a resource to be developed over time but saw it as a tap to be turned on and off as economic conditions changed, the study says.

During a slow growth period between 1967 and 1972, the supply of manpower was broken. "Once broken, it could not be repaired in time for the sudden expansion that began in 1973."

In recent months, unemployment has risen to more than seven per cent and the number of vacant jobs has declined substantially. Statistics Canada figures for May show the jobless total was 714,000 while there were about 65,000 vacant jobs, down from over 100,000 in a similar period of 1974.

Woodcock said that among foreign cars that might have been dumped on the American market were the 1975 Volkswagen Rabbit, British Leyland's 1974 Austin Marina and the 1975 Fiat 128 Coupe.

There can be no justification for... seeking to maintain or increase foreign sales through the device of selling abroad at lower prices than in the home market and indeed at less than cost."

Woodcock said the 1975 Rabbit two-door models with a 1500-cubic-centimetre engine has a current factory price in West Germany of $4,407. He said the port of entry retail price of the same car in the United States is $3,330, including ocean freight and import fees.

He said the Austin Marina four-door deluxe model carried a factory price of approximately $2,884 in Britain, compared with $2,499 in the U.S.

U.S. Oil Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced today a move to lift price ceilings gradually on domestic oil but later decided to delay presenting it to Congress to allow time for "discussion and public dialogue."

In retracting a statement that Ford's blueprint for administrative action would go to Congress today, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford's decision to wait until later in the week grew out of an early morning meeting with Democratic and Republican congressional leaders.

The presidential blueprint, which he called a "compromise oil decontrol plan," would lift present oil price ceilings over a 2½-year period.

Ford estimated his blueprint, if accepted by Congress, would add seven cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline by 1977 and reduce demand for imported oil by 300,000 barrels a day in the same period.

The oil that would be decontrolled under the president's proposal would be that coming from domestic wells that went into production before mid-1972.

Envoy Sees Problems

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Conceding that there "will be problems," Canada's new ambassador told President Ford today that Canada and the United States must be "increasingly sensitive to each other's concerns, difficulties and national aspirations."

"We will need to ensure that our decision-making reflects an informed and up-to-date appreciation of each other's interests," Ambassador Jack Hamilton Warren told Ford in presenting his credentials at a White House ceremony.

Cabinet Moving Toward Rejection of PLO Bid

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Sentiment inside the federal cabinet is swinging against admission of the Palestine Liberation Organization to Canada for the United Nations conference on crime in Toronto this fall, government sources said today.

The whole cabinet met last Thursday for nearly four hours but according to Prime Minister Trudeau failed to reach an agreement.

He told the Commons later the government's position would be made public "as soon as possible."

If the cabinet, as now appears possible, finds against admitting the PLO as observers at the conference it would mean the cancellation of the UN conference.

This action would also likely place in jeopardy the holding of the United Nations conference on Human Habitation scheduled for late May and early June in Vancouver next year.

PLO observers are expected to want to participate in that conference as observers and the UN would probably move it outside of Canada, sources said here.

The federal cabinet is sharply divided over the issue of the PLO and the Crime Conference. External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen reportedly has taken the position that Canada has to allow the conference to continue in Toronto as scheduled because it is a supporter of the UN.

However other members of the cabinet have taken strong stands against admitting the PLO terrorists to Canada UN or no UN.

They are well aware that the issue has become a very live one among Canadians who have been making their views known to the ministers.

As one minister said: "There has been a very lively discussion. It is a question of will politics win out over the UN or will the UN win out over politics. At this stage I'd bet on the former."

Another minister confirmed there is a strong sentiment in the cabinet against admitting the PLO.

He declined to give the reasons.

But it is well known that several cabinet ministers have a large number of Jewish constituents in their ridings. The Liberals to put it bluntly don't want to antagonize the Jewish vote.

ROLE OF TROOPS STILL DEBATED

MONTREAL (CP) — The participation of Canadian troops in security for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games is still being discussed and no firm decisions have been made on its extent or nature, Canadian Forces spokesman said Sunday.

Information officer Major Reginald O'Donnell said the armed forces have not even received a formal request from the police committee planning Games security.

He said published reports that up to 75 per cent of the country's combat-ready troops may be involved are "pure speculation at this time."

"Planning has been going on as usual and various figures have been mentioned," he said. "There are different contingency plans for different conditions."

"But so far we don't know what the request is going to be nor do we know what the situation will be in July, 1976."

"I've heard estimates from 6,000 to 8,000 myself," said Major O'Donnell.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 of the country's available land forces would be involved if the armed forces committed 75 per cent of its ready troops.

Aussies Approve Firing

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Members of the ruling Labor party in Parliament voted 55 to 33 today to approve Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's firing of Jim Cairns, his deputy prime minister and environments minister.

Whitlam fired Cairns July 2 because of alleged improprieties in the raising of foreign loans. Cairns, who has admitted to no improper activities, asked the parliamentary caucus to re-elect him to the cabinet today. But the caucus turned him down.

Instead the caucus elected Overseas Trade Minister Frank Crean to be the new deputy prime minister and named Joe Berinson environment minister.

Political commentators said Cairns' action was a rap at Whitlam, who fired him from the post of treasurer last November.

OPTIMISTS TAKE RUTH TITLE

Kirk Wenzell won his second game of the tournament Sunday to lead Saanich Evening Optimists to the Victoria and District Babe Ruth baseball championship at Lambrick Park.

Wenzell twirled a seven-hitter as Optimists downed defending champion Gordon Head Cosmopolitans 6-2 in the final of the four-team tournament for boys 14 and 15.

The victory gives Optimists a berth in the B.C. Babe Ruth finals starting Saturday at Saanich Park in Sidney. They will be one of eight teams from across the province in the double-elimination tournament.

Optimists, managed by Al King and coached by Gordie Ball and Bob Tuson, swept through the district tournament undefeated. They won their opening game over Esquimalt-Victoria 3-0 on a three-hitter by Wenzell, then beat Cosmopolitans 10-8 Saturday.

Cosmos came out of the losers' bracket with a 9-2 triumph over Esquimalt-Victoria Saturday night to qualify for the final.

Optimists won Sunday's game with a four-run outburst in the seventh and final inning, collecting four of their 11 hits off loser Sandy Crisp. Marty Brouard, with two singles and two runs-batted-in, and Bob Descoteau, with a pair of singles, led the Optimist attack.

Ed Geric was Cosmos' top hitter with a walk, single and double in three trips.

Haslam Leads Race Series After Record Qualifying Run

Roy Haslam of Victoria holds the overall point lead in the $40,000-added International Drivers' Challenge series for super stock cars as drivers pull into Victoria for the third race.

The third event of the six-race series is scheduled at Western Speedway Tuesday, starting with the time trials at 7 p.m.

Fifth in the opening main event Saturday at Tacoma's Spanaway Speedway, Haslam moved to the top of the heap Sunday at the Olympia-Tenino track in Washington.

Haslam finished second to Victoria rival Rick O'Dell. He took the series lead with the help of bonus points from a record-breaking qualifying performance. Haslam broke the Olympia track record with a run of 15.88 seconds.

Heading "home," Haslam has 240 points for a slim, eight-point advantage over Ron Eaton of Tacoma. Another Victoria driver, Bill Price, holds third place with 224 points, followed by Les Swazey of Troutdale, Ore., (209), Ernie Stierley of Vancouver, Wash., (194) and O'Dell (190). Price emerged as a series contender with a second-place finish Saturday to Don Hall of Puyallup, Wash.

The IDC series, which attracted 56 cars from five states and British Columbia, winds up next Sunday in Portland.

Meanwhile, Bob Collins took advantage of the absence of some drivers who are competing in the IDC series to pick up a victory Saturday at Western.

Collins won the 30-lap super-stock main before a crowd of about 1,800 and added second-place finishes in the trophy dash and fast heat race.

In the claimer section of the program, Jim Smith won the 15-lap main event.

Dramatic Eagle Helps Watson Take Playoff

CARNOUSTIE. Scotland (AP) — Any golfer who birdies Carnoustie's feared par-five 14th hole can feel pleased with himself.

Jack Newton of Australia did it in Sunday's playoff for the British Open. But Tom Watson went him one better. He eagled it.

Watson, who was earning a history of choking in major tournaments, went on to win the crown and he said his eagle chip at the 14th was the stroke that counted the most toward the title.

"I hit a good wood for my second shot, and it landed in short grass just off the green, about 30 feet from the pin," Watson said. "I took a chipping wedge for my third shot and it ended in the hole."

Watson went on to a one-under-par 71 over the 7,065-yard, par-72 course and edged Newton by one stroke. It was the fourth time in five days that Watson had shattered par on the famous course, and it helped ease bitter memories of two consecutive United States Opens when he blew chances to win.

The 48-year-old 14th, where the playoff turned in Watson's favor, is called "the spectacles" because two big round bunkers peer out in front of the green.

Watson steered past the bunkers with his second shot but missed the green. The chip, however, was one of the outstanding shots of a memorable tournament.

Carnoustie is a dragon when the wind comes up, but for the first three days there was scarcely a breath of wind. Watson had scores of 71, 67 and 69 on the first three rounds; Newton shot 69, 71 and a course record 65.

Then a westerly wind came up, and in the fourth round, the title was up for grabs as player after player bowed in the stiff breeze. Watson made 72 and Newton 74.

The scores put them even at 279, one stroke ahead of Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Neil Coles, and they went to an 18-hole playoff. Sunday the wind blew again, but from the east. In the playoff, Watson took the lead with a birdie on the second, then moved two strokes out in front when Newton, an Australian pro who plays the European circuit, bogeyed the third. But Watson bogeyed the fifth and Newton evened it with a birdie on the sixth.

They made the turn in par 35. Newton, who like Watson is 25 and virtually unknown on the international circuit, led briefly when he birdied the 12th, but he lost a stroke at 13.

Then came the 14th which was played with such perfection that either player should have had reason to puff up with pride. As it turned out, the eagle was the margin Watson needed.

He bogeyed the 16th, sending the playoff to the wire.

By the time the two approached No. 18, rain splashed the course and sent many of the spectators scurrying to tents to watch the finale on television.

Watson played it in par. Newton blasted from a bunker beside the green and needed a 12-foot putt to send the playoff into more extra holes.

He missed by inches.

The title, the first major victory in nearly four years as a pro, belonged to Watson, as did the $16,500 first prize. Newton owned the course record and $13,200 as runner-up.

Tape Not Rattled By Late Bulletin

GEORGE KNUDSON ... faded at finish

TORONTO (CP) — As far as Bill Tape is concerned, ignorance is bliss, especially for a young golfer facing the pressure of trying to beat out veteran George Knudson for first money in the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Tape, 28-year-old pro from the National Club at Woodbridge, Ont., changed from three strokes behind to overtake the 38-year-old Knudson on the final five holes of the 72-hole tournament Sunday at Bayview Golf and Country Club.

But he had no thanks for the spectators who informed him that he had drawn even with Knudson on 16 and that, when he got to 18, all he needed was a par to win his first CPGA crown.

"I'd rather have not known," he said. "There was enough pressure without the knowledge. When I got to 18 and learned I was one stroke ahead, my heart started pounding twice as fast. But while I was waiting to putt, I had a little talk with myself."

"I told myself that even if I missed, there would be a playoff and that took a little pressure off."

As it turned out, he rolled in his three-footer and walked off the green to claim his $7,000 first prize, his biggest payday in seven years as a pro, along with the Labatt's Cup.

Knudson, who has won eight United States pro tournaments and nearly $500,000 during his pro career, had to settle for the $5,250 second prize.

Tape, who went into the final round leading Knudson and Gary Bowerman of Toronto by two strokes, had a winning score of 67-71-68-69-275, nine under par on the 6,445-yard par-71 course.

The top four finishers all earned exemption from qualifying for the Canadian Open. Tape, Knudson and Bowerman took the first three spots, but Bob Rose of Hamilton had to survive a two-way playoff to take the fourth. Rose and Will Homeniuk of Winnipeg tied for fourth with Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont.

Norman, however, decided he does not want to play in the Canadian Open and passed up his playoff chance.

Dave Barr of Kelowna fired a 66 to post the low score Sunday.

Bill Wakeham of Cowichan and Victoria's John Morgan both finished in the money, but well back. Morgan won $135 for his 293 total while Wakeham wound up with $305 after closing with a 76 and a 288 total.

Vikings Trip Bates

Victoria Bate managed to remain one and one-half games ahead of runner-up Vancouver Magicians Sunday despite trouble in a pair of Mainland doubleheaders during Pacific Coast Football League action at the weekend.

Bate tripped Magicians 1-0 and 2-2 Saturday but dropped 6-0 and 2-1 decisions to last-place North Vancouver Roadhouse Vikings on Sunday.

In another Sunday doubleheader, Magicians downed New Westminster Royal Towers Blues 4-2 in a 17-inning game before being nipped, 1-0.

Five Victoria errors helped Vikings in the first Sunday game and successive 10th-inning singles by Dick Foster, Dale MacDonald and Ken Delcher produced the winning run for the home squad in the second game.

On Saturday, Dave Ruthovsky's strong pitching helped produce the first Victoria triumph and some timely hitting by Ken Bate, who drove in two runs, featured the second victory.

Tonight at 7, Bate will play a heart-fund benefit game against a group of National Hockey League players at the Royal Athletic Park.

Bate will lend a pitcher and a catcher to their opponents, who will include Peter Mahovich of Montreal Canadiens, Pat Price of New York Islanders and Mike Corrigan of Los Angeles Kings.

VICTORIA DRIVERS DUEL

COQUITLAM — John Storr edged fellow-Victorian Gordie Munroe to take first place overall and first in the Formula Atlantic class during the feature formula event of the International Conference of Sports Car Club races Sunday at Westwood.

Munroe finished second overall in the 26-car field and second in the three-car class.

In other events, Roy Thomas of Victoria booted his Mini-Cooper "S" to fourth overall and third in class in the improved sedan race; Bob Slater of Victoria placed first in class in the production sports car race and second in class in the improved production race with his MG Midget while another Victorian, Harry Pillar, finished second in class in the all-sports racing event.

Rocks Tighten Race

NANAIMO — Victoria Shamrocks put more pressure on Vancouver Burrards Saturday as both clubs continued their struggle for second place in the Western Lacrosse Association.

The third-place Shamrocks narrowed the margin to just two points when they defeated Nanaimo Timbermen 14-13 in overtime and the Burrards lost 17-14 to the Salmonbellies in New Westminster.

The Irish hold an advantage on the Burrards, though. They have played four less games than the Vancouver club.

Shamrocks will get their chance to move into second when they take on the Burrards Wednesday night at Memorial Arena starting at 8 p.m.

Shamrocks also learned Saturday of a new playoff plan of league commissioner Colin Cruickshank's which includes them.

In Nanaimo for the contest, Cruickshank announced that the Shamrocks and Timbermen, should they make the playoffs, would meet in the first round of the playoffs despite the league's finish.

Saturday, the Timbermen came close to padding their two-point lead over the last-place Coquitlam Adanacs.

Taking advantage of a sloppy Victoria power play, Nanaimo scored four short-handed goals and led 7-5 after the first period and 9-7 after the second.

The Timbermen appeared safe with an 11-7 lead mid-way through the final period until the Shamrocks rallied and tied the score 12-12 on successive goals by Charn Dhillon, Jeevan Dillon and Mike Walsh.

Victoria's Bob Turkington opened the overtime scoring and then Dhillon scored what proved to be the winning tally on a power play.

Randy Noble had the lone Nanaimo marker in the overtime.

Toronto Turf Coming Apart At the Seams

The new artificial playing surface at the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium in Toronto is coming apart at the seams.

Stadium manager Gordon Walker Jr. has said technicians from the manufacturers of the playing surface, Monsanto Co. of St. Louis, will be in Toronto this week to repair underground zippers.

Walker said the zippers aren't breaking but are coming apart at several points.

"It's like a shirt that opens along a seam," Walker said. "To fix it properly you have to reweave the entire seam."

The field covering was installed recently as part of a stadium expansion that will provide more seats for football and make the field suitable for baseball.

Repairs will force postponement of several soccer games, but should be completed before July 27 when Toronto Argonauts open their Canadian Football League schedule against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Albion, Alcos Stay in Step

Albion and Alcos seem determined to take the Knockout Cup race right down to the wire.

Both teams remained undefeated in the Victoria and District Cricket Association 40-overs competition by winning fourth-round matches at the weekend.

And the two clubs aren't scheduled to meet in the round-robin affair until the sixth and final round on the Sept. 20-21 weekend.

Albion topped Castaways by 43 runs Sunday at Beacon Hill Park while Alcos scored a 27-run Saturday victory over previously-unbeaten Oak Bay at Windsor Park.

In other matches, Cowichan topped Salt Spring by 10 wickets Sunday at Shawmigan Lake and Jim Wenman made a spectacular return to the city cricket scene Saturday while sparking Incogs to an eight-wicket decision over Nanaimo at St. Michael's University School.

Brian Heaps (39 runs), Frank Jarman (33) and Peter Brett (30) led the way as Albion reached 159 for seven wickets. David Auld paced Castaway bowlers by toppling three wickets for the loss of 39 runs.

Castaways were all out for 116 as Dave Shaw led the way with 33. Don Hughes (two for eight) and Malcolm Shanks (three for 28) topped Albion bowling.

Alcos reached 173 with Trevor Bagot (56), Steve Hanson (33) and Mark Hillis (29) the leading batsmen. Eric Richards led Oak Bay bowling with three for 22. Peter Wheaton led Oak Bay to 146 with 46 runs while Jan Aton added 44. Hillis took four Oak Bay wickets for 26 and John Moss tumbled three for 36.

Tim Brierley took four for 27 as Salt Spring was all out for 64. Cowichan then chalked up 67 for two with Peter Lord (32, not out) and Howard Dixon (31, not out) the leading batsmen.

Wenman, who has been in England for about a year, returned to Victoria late Friday night and then scored 123 runs while leading Incogs to 223 for two. Mike Elcock added 33 runs to the Incogs total as the club picked up its first tournament win. Nanaimo could only put together 99 and its record dropped to 2-2.

Hungry Reds Continue To Devour Opposition

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati Reds have been acting like starving men in a hamburger joint—eating everything in sight.

All their 11 rivals in baseball's National League can hope is that the three-day all-star break that begins today can slow their momentum.

But Cincinnati third baseman Pete Rose thinks the three-day absence from the diamond will make the Reds' hearts grow even fonder of beating everybody else.

"We've always been a good second-half team," he said. "I don't think we'll do anything but get better."

"We're a hungry team because we've never won it all."

Rose's bases-loaded two-run single capped a four-run seventh inning Sunday that propelled the Reds to their 10th consecutive victory, a 5-3 triumph over New York Mets.

The win, the Reds' 41st in their last 50 games, also widened their West Division lead to a mind-boggling 12½ games over Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost 2-1 to St. Louis Cardinals.

In Sunday's other games, Pittsburgh Pirates lost 7-3 to San Diego Padres but retained their 6½-game East Division edge over Philadelphia Phillies, who lost 9-5 to Houston Astros, Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos 5-4 in 14 innings and San Francisco Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1.

In Sunday's American League games, Oakland A's mugged Baltimore Orioles 4-3, Detroit Tigers downed Kansas City Royals 8-4, Boston Red Sox whipped Texas Rangers 7-3, Cleveland Indians nipped California Angels 8-7 and Chicago White Sox stopped Milwaukee Brewers 5-0.

Rain forced postponement of action between Minnesota and New York. They were to have completed a game suspended because of the league curfew Saturday night before their regularly-scheduled game.

Oakland led the American League West by 8½ games while the Red Sox led by 4½ games after Sunday's game.

Tom Seaver was cruising along with a 3-0 lead and had allowed the Reds only two singles by Rose before they woke up.

Joe Morgan walked, stole second and scored on Dan Driessen's double. Cesar Geronimo and Dave Concepcion then singled for another run and pinchhitter Terry Crowley drew a walk, loading the bases.

That brought Rose to the plate and Rick Baldwin out of the bullpen.

"I did a little research on Baldwin last week," Rose recalled. "I took my buddies, Reggie Luizinski and Larry Bowa (of the Phillies), over to my house and showed them some films. And I asked them about Baldwin."

Rose then singled to put the Reds on top. They added a run in the eighth on Morgan's walk and stolen base and Tony Pérez's single.

For the second consecutive game, Dave Lopes' homer produced the Dodgers' lone run. St. Louis' winner came on Bake McBride's triple and Reggie Smith's single off Mike Marshall in the bottom of the ninth.

PERON WAS BEST BET

There was no one to stop the three Peron brothers in the Victoria Wheelers' junior road race Sunday on the Happy Valley and Latoria roads.

They were the only entrants in the 30-mile race for the Jim Taylor trophy. Pat finished first, Michel second and Raymond third.

Pat outsprinted Michel to finish the distance in one hour, 22 minutes and 30 seconds, the same time as Michel. Raymond finished in 1:34:30.

Mike Rasmussen was the lone finisher in the 42-mile senior race. He covered the distance in 1:50:25.

Claims of price reductions can be misleading.

Before you choose any compact car, compare. Compare price, and what you're getting for that price, and you'll see that Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart give you a lot for your dollar.

Over the past 16 years, Chrysler compacts have earned a reputation for giving Canadians what they're looking for. A reputation that's paid off by helping make Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart Canada's most popular compact cars.

Five solid reasons to trust us with your compact car dollar.

1. Slant Six Engine

Proven to be one of the toughest, most economical engines ever put in our passenger cars. No other compact has it. Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart give this gas miser to you standard.

2. Plenty of Room Inside

We may describe the outside as compact, but inside the word is big. Big enough for five adults to travel in comfort, and with a trunk that should comfortably handle all their gear. Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart have more trunk space than a lot of full size cars.

3. Electronic Ignition System

No points, no condenser, this ignition system is practically maintenance free. And you can expect sure starts in any weather with the electronic ignition system that comes built right into every Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart.

4. No Special Gas Needed

Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart engines are designed to run on any gas, leaded or unleaded. So there's no frantic searching for the right gas pump.

5. The Chrysler Warranty

Like every 1975 Chrysler passenger car, Plymouth Valiant and Dodge Dart are well covered by a 12 month parts and labour warranty that puts no limit on mileage. (Taxis and police cars excepted). So drive as far as you like.

The first year's on us.

Brenda Wins a Pair Of City Net Titles

Marty Taylor won one title but missed out on two others in the Victoria Closed tennis tournament Saturday at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Top seeded in the men's singles, Taylor needed two and one-half hours to defeat fifth-seeded Neil Coutts 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 for the crown.

His losses came in men's doubles, in which he and Coutts were beaten 6-3, 6-2 by Mike Greenwood and Roger Skillings, and in mixed doubles, in which he and Wendy Cuppage lost 6-7, 6-3, 7-6 to Skillings and Brenda Cameron.

In women's play, top-seeded Miss Cameron trimmed Sally Hemeon 6-2, 6-2 for the singles title, while Mrs. Hemeon and Mrs. Cuppage downed Flo Walther and Maureen Hibberston 6-1, 6-0 for the doubles crown.

In his lone victory, Taylor used his strong service to take the first set easily.

Behind 5-4 in the second set, Coutts battled back and then broke Taylor's service at 5-5 to even the match.

Taylor, however, recovered command of the match in the third set when he hit a succession of short volleys for winners with Coutts, bothered by a wrenched knee from the middle set, unable to get to the net.

In consolation doubles play, Bud Price and Derek Young defeated Fred Graham and Chris Worthington 5-7, 7-5, 7-5 in the men's final, and Anne Graham and Jean Shaw beat Louise McMinn and Pat Olson 6-0, 6-3 in the women's final.

Tough Battle For Bradshaw

RICHMOND — Jim Lees of Vancouver didn't make things easy for Victoria's Glen Bradshaw in the Greater Vancouver Junior Tennis Tournament Saturday at Richmond Tennis Club.

Matched against Bradshaw in the men's under-18 singles final, Lees pushed the former Canadian under-16 champion to tiebreakers in both sets before losing 7-6, 7-6.

two other titles at the tournament.

Andrie Levey downed Jennifer Black 6-4, 6-4 to take the girls' under-14 singles crown Saturday, while Brenda Cameron and Nine Bland beat Leslie Romer and Karen Katenacker 3-6, 6-1, 6-1 Friday to take the girls' under-18 doubles Friday.

Miss Levey missed her chance for a second title Saturday when she and Lynn Bloomer lost 6-3, 6-3 to Miss Black and Maurey Dunnett in the under-14 doubles.

Miss Bland lost the girls' under-18 singles title when she was beaten 6-3, 6-2 by Vancouver's Leslie Romer. Friday, Miss Romer eliminated Miss Cameron 6-3, 6-2 in a semi-final match.

Valerie Bruce of Victoria lost 6-2, 6-4 to Vivian McAdam of Vancouver for the girls' under-12 singles championship.

'Like Punching Clock'

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats suffered what quarterback Bill Etter called "a total team breakdown" and took a 26-0 trouncing from Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Saturday.

Game statistics reflect the Stampeders' advantage more accurately than the score. Calgary had a total offense of 452 yards and 27 first downs to Hamilton's 73 yards and four first downs.

Etter, ineffective during most of the first half, ascribed his team's defeat to a lack of vitality rather than talent.

"We just looked like we were punching time clocks," he said.

Hamilton managed all four of its first downs during a one-minute stretch late in the second quarter. They had pos-sion in Calgary's territory for five of the game's 134 plays.

To add to the aggravation, Hamilton players Dave Easley and Bill Danychuk were injured.

Easley, a defensive back, broke his left arm and will be out of action for six weeks. Danychuk, a defensive tackle, broke a bone in the base of his left thumb, but should be ready to play in the Ticats' regular season opener July 23 against Montreal.

Biggest man of the night was Calgary's 200-pound running back Willie Burden. He carried 23 times for 160 yards and caught four passes for 43 more. He scored one touchdown and had another disallowed.

Rookie import Mark Green scored Calgary's other touchdown.

Left-footed placekicker Cyril McFall kicked three field goals en route to a 13-point evening.

Few Old-Time Flowers In Victoria's Gardens

Out driving in the cool of an evening last week, a friend and I admired the roses blooming in profusion in practically every garden we passed.

Somehow, this turned the talk to flowers that in past years were popular and then, all of a sudden, were dropped for other varieties to which garden lovers turned.

We started looking for some of these old-time flowers and found very few — a small display of clarkia in one garden and in another, which obviously had been planted years ago, larkspur and bachelor buttons.

But where, we wondered,

were the borders we remembered our mothers caring for so tenderly through long-ago summers?

Those borders could be a foot wide when they were planted with several shades of candytuft. They could be even wider if two or more varieties of flowers were used — for instance, blue lobelia and yellow calceolaria with its pouchshaped blossoms, backed by added color with red geraniums.

Geraniums are still popular but you don't often see lobelia and calceolaria combined with them now.

Pansies are still with us too, but what happened to violas? A few years back they were favored almost to the exclusion of pansies.

Driving slowly along we thought of gardens where verbenas and mignonette once scented the evening air; where evening primroses opened as the sun went down and Canterbury bells, foxgloves and campanulas bloomed in a careless mosaic of color.

We conceded that flowers in the gardens of yesterday might not have been as perfect in shape and form as those in the more orderly and stylized gardens of today — but they had color and perfume to spare.

Then we spoke of columbines, monkshood, London pride and the gypsophylas with their small, delicate flowers (babies' breath was the common name).

You always included gypsophylla with every cutting of sweetpeas.

We thought too of that delightful, pin-cushion flower with the unbelievable name of scabiosa. There used to be solid plantings in every garden. And we remembered a shrub that when you rubbed one of its rough green leaves between thumb and finger, gave off the pungent scent of lemons.

Of course, if we had driven out and away from city streets, I'm certain we would have found the flowers of yesterday we remembered, and a good many we had forgotten, growing and blossoming in many long-planted gardens.

In the urban areas however, people have turned more to a type of planting that makes good showings with the least work. There's still color aplenty but even with the roses, very little perfume to wait out on the summer air.

A Quick Turnabout — To a coffee hour where several young women with small children were tossing around the question — should day care centres be in neighborhood settings or should they be close to or part of business and industrial complexes where parents are employed?

One or two were not so sure it would be a good idea to have day care in or near places of work. It might give parents too ready an access to them and make it doubly hard for those in charge to care for the children.

On the other hand, it was suggested, with a centre on or near such premises, nursing mothers could go in to feed their babies on coffee breaks, and if a child had to take medicine, the mother would be close at hand to give it.

There was also a good argument for neighborhood centres. They make the transition from day care to community school easier for the child, one mother insisted.

Voice the words "Day care" anywhere these days and you spark discussion. Which surely shows there is need for a co-ordinated program shared in some way by provincial and federal governments.

There are mothers who need a "break" now and then and who opt for a drop-in type of centre where they can take their youngsters and leave them for a couple of hours occasionally.

One-parent mothers (fathers, too) who work shifts and who need care for their children not only while they work but when they come home and need to get rest.

Parents, both working, who cannot get home until supper time. They worry about what their young in public schools are doing when classes are over for the day.

There is need they all say for "good day care and lots of it."

Those words were used as a slogan in a recent parade of a women's liberation movement in Toronto.

And you can be sure they will head lists of controversial subjects on the agendas of many a meeting — come September — as more and more mothers look for places to leave their children so they can go out to work.

CLOVER FIELDS on the Emslie farm at Rusagonis Station, N.B., have yielded a scrapbook full of four, five and six-leaf clovers for John Emslie in the past two years. He topped them all recently when he found one with seven leaves, at right.

What to Do With Abundant Crop of Peas

By HILDA BEASTALL

Green peas are a good crop again this year in local gardens. Early spring sowings almost caught up with those started last fall so that many gardeners are wondering how to cope with a great crop.

My advice is use all you can while sweet and fresh from the vines and share with friends who cannot produce their own. And then consider freezing for winter if you have the equipment for doing so.

Even more nutritious are ediblepod peas; they are easier to grow, too, for a continuity of alternate days of picking is possible from the time the first flowers fade. The peas do not have to swell in the pods.

Harvest these ediblepod peas when between one and two inches long, before the peas can be seen. Only at this stage are the pods truly delicious.

The cooking is simple. Top and tail each pod; cut in half if you wish. Drop into a minimum of boiling water for 5 to 7 minutes of boiling time. A large quantity of pods will take a couple of minutes to return to boiling point.

Five minutes of boiling with lid on is just enough to cook the pods without destroying the crisp texture.

Drain off the liquid to use for sauce or soup later, and serve the pods with a knob of butter or soft margarine, accompanied by a cheese or egg omelette or a delicate potato soufflé.

You may have grown your ediblepod peas under other names — snowpeas, sugar peas and sugarpod peas are names found in catalogue and other literature. They are all the same as far as I can discover.

The delicate flavor of this pea pod is most apparent when eaten without cooking.

Top and tail each pod, cut the longer ones in half, and add to mixed salads which tend to be too soft in texture. The only dressing needed is yogurt made from skim milk with a few drops of fresh lemon juice.

Chinese pan-cooking makes use of ediblepod peas for their crunchiness as well as delicate flavor, but don't drown them in a strongly seasoned sauce.

Inevitably some pods remain on the four-foot (so-called dwarf) vines, finally discovered as having about five small but fully developed peas inside. If the pods are rather shrunken discard them but first take out the peas and cook them in boiling water for 15 minutes.

Freezing for winter use might be the answer to keeping up with the immense cropping power of these plants. Have any of you tried this? And how did they taste on a winter's day?

The French method of cooking their petite pois can be used with these pods. Shred green lettuce leaves enough to cover the bottom of saucepan. Cover with the pods and sprinkle more shredded lettuce leaves on top.

Cook very gently for 5 minutes, with a tight fitting lid so as not to lose any of the steam. Shake the pot once while cooking.

Serve with a knob of butter or soft margarine and serve the lettuce leaves with the pods.

If the quantity of pods warrants it, add another layer of lettuce leaves between layers of pods. The moisture from the leaves steams the pods and little or no loss of vitamins occurs. The greatest loss of nutrients is experienced when pods are gathered more than an hour before eating.

Shelled young peas of the commonly grown varieties also are enjoyed at their best when picked within the hour of serving. The less time elapse the better flavor. They too have more flavor when cooked as the French do — on a layer of lettuce leaves with a tight fitting lid for a few minutes. Keep the heat down to a gentle simmering or you end up with burnt black charcoal, even in five minutes.

It was interesting to come across this method in a Yukon cookbook. We know that fresh vegetables are literally priceless in the far north. This little book illustrated a small stove-heated greenhouse full of growing food plants in the short season of long sunlit days.

Raw peas from the pod are a natural. Nearly every child will eat raw vegetables in preference to cooked if allowed, or encouraged, to do so. Don't hesitate to use raw shelled peas with young carrots split down into two pieces for easy handling.

To prevent the peas from travelling all over the floor from the table, make them stay on the plates by anchoring them in cottage cheese or yogurt.

Don't completely hide the bright green morsels. Make mounds of cheese studded with the peas and surrounded by shredded lettuce topped with carrot sticks dipped in lemon juice. I once knew a lad who refused raw (or cooked) carrots because they were too sweet. I didn't know about the lemon juice trick then.

Green peas, whether shelled or whole pods, like sweet corn, need fast efficient treatment if they are to yield the bounty of their goodness in flavor and nutrition.

UFO Spotters 'Are Normal'

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Most people who say they have seen flying saucers, cigar-shaped airships and "humanoids" from outer space are perfectly normal, according to a University of Wyoming psychology professor.

However, Dr. R. Leo Sprinkle said, "traditional scientific methods do not provide evidence which is considered to be proof of the existence of UFO phenomena."

He presented a paper on the subject to a group of about 150 unidentified flying objects investigators at the annual Mutual UFO Network conference during the weekend. MUFON is a not-for-profit corporation composed of persons interested in resolving the UFO phenomenon by combining their talents, research and investigative efforts.

Sprinkle said evidence suggests that most persons who report seeing unidentified flying objects "are 'normal' persons who perceive and report 'abnormal' phenomena."

He said the characteristics of UFO witnesses show a wide range in age, education, occupation and cultural backgrounds and the UFO evidence they have presented is "a deluge, not a delusion." Sprinkle said evidence doesn't support the hypothesis that UFO reports are submitted only by persons who have psychopathological problems.

The testimony of UFO witnesses indicates they are convinced of the reality of their experiences, he said.

"Because of the unusual claims of UFO percipients, and because of the announcements of public and-or military officials, many persons have hypothesized that UFO reports are being generated by 'kooks and cultists,'" Sprinkle said.

"There is sufficient evidence to convince the UFO witness that something unusual has been perceived," he said. "However, there may be insufficient evidence in the view of the skeptical person who has not perceived the UFO experience."

"The evidence is insufficient at present to determine if UFO observers are puppets or prophets. However, the paradox of UFO evidence suggests that UFO investigators may continue to be frustrated in their attempts to 'prove' the existence of flying saucers."

Sprinkle said, "If UFO phenomena continue to be perceived by individual, who are unable to present proof of their experience, should we accept our situation as a predicament? If so, then we must learn to tolerate our situation."

Fee Structure Irks Doctors in Nfld.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland's doctors say they are not happy with the current fee structure under the provincial medical care program, known officially as the Newfoundland Medicare Commission.

At its annual meeting, the Newfoundland Medical Association expressed dissatisfaction with a new agreement calling for a 12-per-cent increase next April 1.

The increase was based on the total amount of money spent on providing doctors' services in the province and will be distributed on an even basis with doctors having the greatest operating expenses receiving the largest percentage of the increase.

The fee increase applies to physicians in private practice. Dr. J. Douglas Wallace, general manager of the Canadian Medical Association, told the delegates he was surprised salaried doctors in Newfoundland are doing so well.

These doctors, employed by the province mainly in outpost communities, recently had their pay scale revised to range between $29,000 and $49,000, depending on experience. It previously ranged between $21,000 and $43,000.

But some physicians in private practice feel that their professional compatriots working in cottage hospitals or employed directly by the government are earning more money because they have no overhead expenses to contend with.

Private practitioners have wondered why they have no pension fund like the government doctors and also why they shouldn't be paid on the basis of experience also.

NMA officials say that when the time comes to negotiate, the government may find the physicians a bit tougher to deal with.

Dr. Wallace says the CMW plans to acquire the services of experts in the labor field when negotiating new contracts with government.

Dr. C. U. Henderson, past president of the NMA, said a committee has been established to meet with medicare officials for any further negotiations.

He said the committee will ensure that matters will not be left "to the last moment" when contract talks come up in future.

The NMA stirred a minor controversy during its convention by passing a resolution urging the government to lower to 16 years from 19 the age at which a person can legally receive medical treatment without parental consent.

Church groups, in particular, immediately jumped on the idea on moral grounds.

It seems that one effect of such a change would make 16-year-old girls eligible to purchase birth-control pills on prescription and this doesn't go down well with religious interests.

Rape Attempt Repellant Near

BURNABY (CP) — A Burnaby resident has developed a device to repel rape and assault attempts and which will be put on the market within 90 days.

The device, a small capsule containing foul-smelling chemicals under high pressure, can be clipped to clothing for easy access and broken to release the repellants.

The attacker is so repelled by the odor that he leaves his intended victim.

Inventor Paul Leblond, 47, said the increasing frequency of rape and indecent assault made him realize how vulnerable and powerless women are and how much fear there is in large cities.

He said advice to women on self defence is often conflicting, weaponry is sometimes dangerous to the victim and mace has been outlawed in most areas because of its toxicity.

Initial models will consist of capsules mounted on brooch clips that can be attached to clothing. Later models will be incorporated into jewellery such as necklaces, bracelets and rings, he said.

The chemical bothers the victim as much as the attacker, but Leblond said that the smell wears off in about 25 minutes to an hour with no side-effects.

Women can carry around a deodorizer to neutralize the smell.

The anti-rape repellant will be made available to consumers at less than $5.

"I want every woman to be able to afford it," Leblond said.

He is patenting the invention in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom.

She Finds Fortunes in Tea Cup Bottoms

By LORRAINE GIBEAU

EDMONTON (CP) — Magda describes herself as a social worker, a psychiatrist, a friend to the young, a confessor, and yes, a psychic.

She is one of a handful of women in Edmonton who make their living reading people's fortunes in the leaves at the bottom of tea cups.

Magda, as do most of the others, works out of a downtown restaurant. Her clientele know her as a petite brunette with a lilting French accent.

They don't, however, know her real name, which she says brought her unhappiness. "I took the name Magda so my identity would remain a mystery. It was given to me by a gypsy in England who told me to use it when I started to read for the public."

That was eight years ago, when a divorce forced her to make a living for herself and her three children.

She had never been to a tea-cup reader in her life, although she says she has had psychic experiences ever since she can remember.

Magda notes that her mother's side of the family was known to be psychic, so she thought it normal as a child to be able to "see" future events, read minds and see across distances.

"I thought everyone else was like me," she said, remembering. "I had been made aware from childhood that there was such a thing as extra-sensory perception — my mother called it an insight that everyone has."

When Magda started reading in a downtown Edmonton fish-and-chip shop, she was appalled at the treatment given to tea-cup readers.

"We were treated like scum, pushed around, humiliated by the restaurant owners and by people who didn't want to give us 50 cents for our work."

But those days are gone now, and Magda is proud of her growing business. She has gained respect, too.

"I read for a lot of big businessmen, who bring their secretaries with them to take notes. They won't make any big move until they hear what I have to say."

Magda's customers confide in her, confess to her, cry on her shoulder, but she loves it, she said, because she loves people. If someone approaches her with a problem she can't handle, she refers him or her to professional help.

She admitted that there are some people she can't read for — it depends on her mood, the customer's mood, and the unexplainable "vibrations" between the two.

Some of her customers say she is 90 to 100-per-cent accurate in her readings, but she rates herself at between 50 and 75 per cent.

The tea cup, she stressed, isn't what's important for a reading.

"Any object I use to read is a medium. The best are the crystal ball, the tea leaves and cards, both ordinary and the tarot."

"I also practise mental telepathy, picking up people's wishes and fantasies, and I see the future on occasion. I can pick up the past and the present from a person's subconscious, but I don't understand how I see the future."

Born in Paris and raised in a convent, Magda once was a Roman Catholic.

But now, she believes strongly in the power of the mind, and the supreme power of what she calls the "universal mind."

"I guess it could be called

"God", but I don't like that word because we're all part of the universal mind, it's not something separate from us."

Well-Balanced Shampoo Crucial for Healthy Hair

TORONTO (CP) — A new term in the hairdressing business involves scientific training. Such an operator, says Toronto hairstylist Robert Francois, can or should be able to test the protein content, diameter, elasticity and moisture contents of hair.

In an interview on the proper care of children's hair, Mr. Francois said many mothers will buy shampoo by its price tag rather than whether it is well-balanced.

"The balance of a shampoo is all-important," he said.

Mr. Francois said that most old-fashioned formula shampoos tend to make the hair porous. The hair, in turn, tangles and becomes difficult to comb out.

He said that damaged hair can be repaired by trained hairdressers. Also he recommended that children's hair be cut professionally once, then mother will find it easy to keep up.

"For a good cut, I look at the whole person and what suits a particular child," he said. "Like a dress tried on 10 persons—maybe only one can wear it, while the other nine would look terrible in it."

He said that chlorine in swimming pools dries out the hair and suggested the application of an acid protein solution "and not too much brushing" after bathing.

Kicked Out Weekends

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old, self-supporting career woman. My parents are divorced, and I share a two-bedroom apartment with my father.

We get along very well. At least we did until this problem came up. My dad has a girl friend. She and dad sometimes go off together for weekends. I am a big girl, and I know they sleep together, which is none of my business. However, my dad tells me that his girl friend refuses to spend the night at his apartment as long as I am there, so I am sent away to spend the night elsewhere whenever he wants her over.

I didn't mind it occasionally, but now it seems that every weekend I'm getting kicked out of my own apartment.

Montague BRIDGMAN Ltd.
China Crystal Gifts
1111 GOVERNMENT ST. 383-0821

My dad says he wouldn't mind if I stayed, but his girl friend does.

What do you suggest I do? Should I have a woman-to-woman talk with her? She is 33; Dad is 46. Nameless.

DEAR NAMELESS: Forget the woman-to-woman talk. She's embarrassed, and I don't blame her. I think it's time you moved out and got your own apartment.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am a girl who is very much in love with a gay guy. We live together and get along beautifully. We like the same things, go everywhere together and have straight as well as gay friends.

He says that one day he will probably go straight because he wants to raise a family. He often talks about getting married (to me), but the talk never leads to anything definite.

I understand his past, and it doesn't bother me. Do you think I am foolish for waiting for him to go straight? And once he goes straight (if he ever does), will he stay that way? Or would I have to worry about his going gay again?—TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: If he is sufficiently motivated, with therapy and determination, he could possibly go straight—and stay straight. But the advice from here is: Don't marry him until he is straight and you're convinced that he's straight for keeps, which could be a long wait.

DEAR ABBY: My girl friend and I are both 20. We plan to get married in three months, but we have a problem.

My girl friend has a child by a previous marriage, and she wants to wait until after we are married to tell my parents about it. She says she's afraid if my folks know about it now, they won't like her.

I say she should tell them now—before we get married. What do you think?—CHILD PROBLEM

DEAR PROBLEM: I agree with you. There is no reason for her to try to hush up a previous marriage and child. If she does, your parents will feel betrayed and will not like her for certain.

Church Wants Woman Priest

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — The vestry treasurer of Christ Episcopal Anglican Church says the vestry has asked its pastor, Rev. Peter Beebe, to appoint a woman associate priest.

Treasurer Henry Freas said Sunday the vestry wants one of the 11 women ordained in irregular ceremonies in Philadelphia last year to be appointed by Beebe, convicted by a church court June 20 of violating church law by allowing two of the women to celebrate communion here last Dec. 3.

CATTLE PRODS ON KIDS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Use of electric "cattle prods" has been approved for control of some disturbed children by directors of the Illinois Mental Health and Children and Family Services departments, the Chicago Daily News reported today.

The newspaper quoted Dr. Leroy Levitt, state mental health director, as saying he and Mary Lee Leahy, director of children and family services, both approved use of the battery-powered prods after an investigation at the Rimland School for autistic children in suburban Evanston.

Levitt said the electric prod is recognized nationally as an effective means of controlling extremely violent, self-destructive children. He said the shock when properly administered to the back of a child can be a "life saver," the Daily News said.

The directors, according to Leahy, investigated the use of the prod at the Rimland School after the facility was threatened with a cutoff of federal funds administered by the Cook County school system.

Levitt said he has approved the use of the prod within his own department but planned to closely supervise it to prevent abuses.

3,600 Convicts Freed

TAIPEI (AP) — More than 3,600 convicts were released in Taiwan under a special commutation act early today, 100 days after the death of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

One political prisoner will be set free under the act, and three others will have their sentences reduced, officials said. Albert Yuan, a 62-year-old former reporter for Agence France-Presse, was the only political prisoner able to meet requirements for release, a ministry source said.

The first group of nearly 1,000 convicts passed through the gate of Taipei penitentiary shortly after midnight, a spokesman for the justice ministry said.

Official sources said about 4,000 other prisoners will be released after today under the same commutation act. Taiwan's second. The island's first amnesty was granted in 1971 to mark Taiwan's 60th anniversary. About 18,000 prisoners were pardoned.

Babies Going to U.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says an international network of doctors and lawyers, using abortion referral agencies as sources, is channeling newborn Canadian babies to childless couples in the United States.

At least two Montreal abortion referral agencies attempted recently to arrange private adoptions here for Gazette reporters posing as unwed mothers or prospective parents, the newspaper says. Neither centre is licensed as an adoption agency.

The newspaper says several New York abortion centres which take abortion referrals from Montreal also offered over the phone to arrange expensive private adoptions for persons posing as pregnant Montreal women.

One doctor said adoptive parents in the U.S. could pay up to $10,000 a baby, the newspaper says.

A Gazette reporter, posing as an adoptive parent, also called an agency which advertised itself as helping women "continue pregnancy," and was told:

"We have another service where a girl is too far gone in her pregnancy . . . the babies are adopted in New York state."

One director of a centre for abortion referral told a reporter posing as an adoptive parent she had a "list a mile long" seeking infants to adopt who have been unable to find children through government agencies.

Race and Sex Combine to Make A Volatile Trial Combination

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Race and sex, always a volatile combination in the south, come together today in a North Carolina courtroom.

The case involves Joan Little, a 21-year-old black accused of murdering Clarence Allgood, 62 and white, night jailer at the Beaufort County Jail in Washington N.C.

She claims Allgood tried to rape her.

"I am a black woman fighting or what I thought was right," she says.

Allgood's body, nude from the waist down except for socks, was found early on the morning of Aug. 27, 1974, in the cell where Miss Little had been confined for a breaking and entering conviction. He had been stabbed 11 times.

Miss Little, the only woman prisoner at the jail in Washington, a town of 8,961 near the North Carolina coast, had vanished, only to surrender eight days later in Raleigh.

"The fact of whether I had the right to defend myself or not," she says, is the issue.

Julian Bond's Southern Poverty Law Centre in Montgomery, Ala., has raised $95,000 for her defence, and Jerry Paul, a white Durham lawyer long active in civil rights in North Carolina, man-

The trial began today in Wake County Superior Court.

Miss Little grew up with eight brothers and sisters in an unpainted shack at Chowcherry, a hamlet on the edge of Washington in the Piney Flatlands near the Pamlico River.

Bothered by a thyroid problem, she dropped out of school and lived for a while with relatives in Connecticut, New York and Philadelphia before returning to Washington.

She worked as a waitress, then as a garment worker, finally taking up sheetrock hanging, her trade she when put behind bars last year.

There had been previous brushes with the law.

Miss Little was arrested at nearby Jacksonville in 1973 for carrying a concealed rifle under the seat of her car, but the case never came to trial. In neighboring Pitt County she received a suspended sentence for shoplifting a pair of socks and a shirt.

But not until June of last year did she receive an active prison sentence—seven to 10 years for breaking and entering at a trailer park.

She had been behind bars 81 days awaiting an appeal of that conviction when Allgood was stabbed.

Allgood, a farmer with six children, had gone to work at the jail 18 months before, keeping the night shift there and farming during the day.

Friends like bail bondsman Jennings Freeman describe him as a kindly man "who wouldn't have mistreated a dog."

Allgood occasionally allowed inmates to send out for food from a restaurant and frequently permitted them to use the telephone at his desk.

Inside the desk was the wood-handled icepick used to kill him.

The prosecution believes Miss Little stole the icepick and used it to force her escape after murdering Allgood. Miss Little claims she wrestled the icepick away from Allgood, who was trying to force her to have sexual relations.

Miss Little's case has attracted support from the civil rights and women's rights movements, two groups concerned with the issues of rape, prison conditions and capital punishment.

If Miss Little is convicted, she automatically will be sentenced to death under a North Carolina law that makes capital punishment mandatory for first degree murder and rape.

Nearly 82 persons are awaiting execution on death row at Raleigh's central prison.

Defence attorneys believe it is significant Miss Little will go on trial in Wake County's high-rise courthouse, less than three blocks from the state capitol, rather than in rural Washington.

Paul believes "Raleigh, with

Saudi Refugee Cash

BEIRUT (UPI) — Saudi Arabia has decided to make a major contribution — just over $11 million this year — to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees to help save it from imminent collapse, according to United Nations officials.

The Saudi contribution, the first substantial support ever given UNRWA by an Arab government, should enable the agency to unlock enough additional funds, particularly from other oil-rich Arab governments, to maintain operations this year.

The precedent-making step followed an appeal from UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

It was nominally addressed to all UN-member countries, but specifically supported by two trips to Riyadh, the Saudi capital, by UNRWA Commissioner-General Sir John Rennie.

Rennie is reliably reported to have explained that unless oil-rich Arab governments, such as Saudi Arabia, came to the agency's rescue, extra Western support was excluded.

An influential factor was an appeal by the Palestine Liberation Organization led by Yasser Arafat, for help in maintaining UNRWA services for the refugee community.

Bias Hurts Viets

REGINA (CP) — A housing shortage aggravated by racial discrimination has been the main obstacle to 14 Vietnamese refugees attempting to start new lives in Regina.

The 14 began arriving here about 14 days ago and have had little trouble finding jobs but great difficulty finding accommodation.

All 14 now are staying in a downtown hotel, but will have to leave July 28 to make room for visitors to the city's annual Buffalo Days exhibition.

Manpower counsellor Nancy Quirk said in an interview it is hard enough to anyone to find suitable housing in the city, but the refugees' problem is compounded by discrimination.

She said two boarding houses refused to rent to the Vietnamese.

Quirk said both landlords asked what Vietnamese look like and refused to rent to them after being told their appearance is similar to Japanese or Chinese.

Such discrimination is permitted under a recent amendment to provincial human rights legislation.

The amendment permits discrimination by homeowners who would be sharing bathroom or kitchen facilities with tenants.

Quirk said the federal Manpower and Immigration Department has been unable to find accommodation for the Vietnamese for after they have to move out of the hotel.

Go-Home Hunger Strike

AGANA, Guam (Reuter) — Several hundred South Vietnamese have launched demonstrations and hunger strikes here to try to speed the process of repatriating them.

Many of the 1,477 refugees are members of the former South Vietnamese armed forces who still have families in Vietnam.

About half of them, led by a group who returned to Guam from the United States two weeks ago, started a 24-hour hunger strike Friday.

They and others sang patriotic Vietnamese songs on lawns outside their navy barracks and carried signs reading "We love our country," "We want to go home," and "We are slaves."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in a team-of-four match, both South declarers realized that the key to the winning line of play was to get to dummy to take a finesse in trumps. One of the declarers accomplished this objective. The other didn't, through no fault of his own.

North-South vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:
West North East South
2♣ Pass 3♦ 4♥
Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

West's two-spade opening bid was the "weak" two bid, showing a six-card suit within a hand containing 6-12 high-card points.

After winning the opening spade lead with his ace, declarer attempted to reach dummy (for a trump finesse) by leading a low club. West won this trick with his ace of clubs.

West now made a gambling play by plunking down his unsupported king of diamonds. When this card won the trick, he continued with his remaining diamond. East's eight winning trick after dummy had followed suit with the seven-spot. Next came the ace of diamonds, which South ruffed with the queen. On this trick West made the perfect discard: he tossed away the ten of clubs.

Declarer was now unable to reach dummy via the club jack to take the heart finesse. So eventually he had to lose a heart trick to East's king, and incur a one-trick set.

When the deal was re-played, South also arrived at a four-heart contract, via the same sequence of bidding that had developed when the deal was played originally. But this West defender chose to open the king of diamonds (instead of a spade). With the king winning, he continued with his remaining diamond, dummy's nine being taken by East's ten. East then played the diamond ace. South ruffing with the ten-spot. West tossed away the ten of clubs, as his counterpart had done.

South now proceeded to cash the spade ace, and at trick five he led a low club. West having no choice but to take it with his ace. West was now stuck. If he led a spade, dummy's king would win, after which declarer would take a successful finesse against East's king of trumps, thus avoiding the loss of a trump trick. And if, instead, West led a trump, he would entrap his partner's king. West could have defeated the contract by cashing the club ace after his diamond king had won the first trick. But it is difficult to blame him for not having done so.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

For Tuesday, July 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid premature starts. Round out projects, assignments. Lie low, play waiting game. Do plenty of listening, observing. Detect subtle nuances and hold off on direct action. Someone is sending you a signal. You'll get it!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What seems attractive on surface requires more investigation. Know it and act accordingly. Going too fast, too soon could be costly. Accent is on service, basic issues, details and independence minus arrogance. You get answer to question — and it is different than supposed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Path to contentment might be rocky. Expect it and be ready to fight for what is right. Means emotional setbacks are temporary. Rise above initial discouragement. You haven't been told everything — when you get complete story, sunshine will replace gloom.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): No free rides. Self-discipline is more necessary than in recent past. Hold tight to principles. You get nothing for nothing despite protestations to the contrary. Property, home, basic security — these areas are featured. Gemini, Sagittarius persons may be in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be aware of apparent minor matters, details, including hidden clauses. Read between the lines. Accent is on quick trips, short messages, calls and relatives who make special requests. Hold off on long-range plans. You have plenty of additional listening and learning to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message for valid hint. Investigate. Ask questions. Don't be satisfied that something merely occurred; find out why it happened. Private detective work on your own brings constructive results in form of answers. Don't attempt to mix money and friendship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle is such that key issues dominate. Trust your judgment. Older individual pulls strings. Stop pulling in opposite direction. If co-operative, you can make significant gains. Family reconciliation lifts your spirits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Discretion is highlighted in sense that you have a secret. Pisces, Virgo persons are in picture. You get behind scenes and have access to privileged information. Hospital visit may be on agenda. Keep promise to one whose movements have been confined due to illness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Involvement is featured. Member of opposite sex is in picture. You are due to make a commitment. Some of your fondest hopes, wishes can come close to realities. Responsibility comes with the territory, however. Take care that you don't request more than you can handle!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): More people understand you, are drawn to you and they say so and do something about it. Plainly, you get results! You finish assignment, make valuable contacts, get better display and distribution. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Anchor is lifted — there's room for you at top.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take steps which lead to future rather than to brooding about past. Stress vision, independence, inventiveness. Adhere to your own style. Language and other barriers will not stop you. Know it and be confident. Long-distance communication provides added fuel, encouragement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money picture may be somewhat scattered. Key now is consolidation, pulling together instead of bits and pieces. One who aided in past is once more available. Aquarian figures prominently. You gain needed co-operation. Green light could return cash flow.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY your voice is unusual, you appreciate art, music, you draw to you persons born under Taurus and Libra. This is a power year and September could be your most significant month of 1975. If single, marriage is on horizon. If married, you might go into business and there could be an addition to your family.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Jake was in his little store when Mary dropped in. "Did you sell all those cheap tops?" she asked. "I guess kids might go for them even though they were all the same with the same crazy words." "Sure the kids do," the old man replied. "I've sold just two-thirds of them, and for exactly three-quarters of what I paid for the lot. I figure that's a profit of 20 bucks on what I've sold."

"He knows his business! What had Jake paid for the lot?"
(Answer tomorrow)
Friday's answer: New prices, $48.00 and $39.78.

SPORTS

Tom Watson, a 25-year-old American who three times had squandered chances in major championship events, kept his cool all the way Sunday at Carnoustie, Scotland, and won a playoff for the British Open golf title. Watson holed a 30-foot chip shot for an eagle at the 14th hole and went on for a one-under-par 71, beating Australian Jack Newton, also 25, by one shot. Page 14.

Ontario rivals duelled for the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association crown at Toronto with Bill Tape coming from behind for a one-stroke victory over veteran George Knudson. Page 14.

Victoria's Roy Haslam leads the over-all point standings in the $40,000 International Drivers' Challenge for super-stock cars after a second-place finish and a record qualifying performance Sunday at Olympia, Wash. Page 14.

Two Victoria drivers were in the spotlight in a sports car racing meet at the Westwood circuit near Coquitlam. John Stord edged Gordie Munroe in the feature race and collected the over-all points title. Page 14.

Major league baseball clubs have paused for the annual all-star game with National League teams hoping the three-day break will disrupt the charge of Cincinnati's rampaging Reds, who won their 10th straight game Sunday and made it 41 victories in their last 50 games. Page 15.

Victoria Bats dropped a pair of games Sunday on the Mainland but managed to retain first place in the Pacific Coast East-Ball League. Page 14.

Saanich Evening Optimists moved into the provincial Babe Ruth (13 and 14-year-old) baseball tournament next weekend at Sidney by defeating Gordon Head Cosmopolitans 6-2 Sunday at Lambrick Park in the Victoria and District final. Page 14.

Fragile Ulster Truce Cracks

LONDON (AP) — The fragile, five-month-old ceasefire between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland looked ever more feeble today, with three new killings and a toughening stance by diehard Protestant leaders.

Meanwhile, police in England were quoted as saying they had details of a plan by the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) to renew planting bombs in British cities and to shoot prominent Britons if the truce fails.

Police in the English port city of Liverpool, where many Irish live, arrested IRA gunman Sean Kinsella, who broke jail with 18 other IRA men in the Irish Republic last August. Several of these men could be in Britain, police believe.

Liverpool police said the arms and explosives seized in a raid there last week are the biggest IRA arms cache ever uncovered in Britain.

The Dublin Sunday Press newspaper says partly burned documents found in the raid described an IRA plan to bomb London and English Midlands cities if sectarian conflict bursts out again in Northern Ireland.

The Sun says the British police have details of IRA plans to shoot British judges and policemen. It suggests seven shootings of policemen, one of them fatal, in English cities since Christmas have involved the IRA, and claims a buildup for the projected violence in Britain has been going on for months.

Jump-Gun Walkouts In Mills

Forest industry workers have jumped the traces at eight B.C. pulp and paper mills in strikes the government hoped to avoid by appointing a special mediator to settle a strife in an already market-depressed industry.

The action follows a heated meeting of union and management representatives in Labor Minister Bill King's office Saturday and included wildcat work stoppages at lumber camps in a few instances.

But a spokesman for Forest Industrial Relations said today he understood camp operations are normal today and the International Woodworkers of America is "co-operating completely with the government's request to maintain the status quo and keep it cool."

Pulp workers meanwhile are picketing mills at Crofton and Elk Falls on Vancouver Island, and at Prince George Pulp and Paper, Prince Rupert, Ocean Falls and Port Mellon on the mainland.

At Kamloops pulp mill there is a strike but no picketing, according to FIR, and at Woodfibre there is a work stoppage which the company says is a maintenance shutdown and the workers claim is a lockout.

In addition, there are two others of the 20 B.C. pulp mills which are not operating.

Extension Likely In Food Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — The industrial inquiry commission set up to propose a non-binding settlement of the British Columbia food industry dispute may require more than 14 days to reach its conclusion, the commission head said Saturday.

Clive McKee, a private labor relations consultant appointed by Labor Minister Bill King to help settle the dispute, said it would be at least a week before he can complete a report he is currently doing on the B.C. construction industry.

$5,000 A HEAD TO LEAVE STATE

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — A plan to pay welfare recipients $5,000 each to leave the state is being considered by a group of economic experts, says the chairman of the Michigan Manpower Council.

Dr. Daniel Kruger, a professor of industrial relations at Michigan State University, told the summer meeting of the Michigan Press Association that Michigan is anticipating about 100,000 new welfare enrollees in the next six months.

Kruger, in a speech before the association Friday, said those favoring the enticement include himself, Dr. John Dempsey, director of state social services, and Wilbur Cohen, a University of Michigan economist and former official in the federal department of health, education and welfare.

The economists are considering ways to reduce welfare rolls, Kruger said.

"We are trying to find ways to export welfare recipients," Kruger said. "If we could pay somebody $5,000 to leave the state, it would save money for taxpayers."

"But I'm not sure we could get away with that," The Times quotes Kruger as saying Michigan is attracting too many unemployed persons from states where welfare payments were not as generous.

$1 OFFER FOR BOAT

The provincial government has put forward a purchase bid of $1 for the Canadian National Steamship Prince George, the vessel that formerly plied the waters from Vancouver to Alaska.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said the bid was submitted with "our full commitment that the provincial government will restore the ship to proper use... on a much neglected coastline."

"While this price is low, ships have been purchased in the past from the federal government and CN for this price."

The province would start a one-week round trip up and down the B.C. coast during the tourist season, calling at small communities along the way to provide new interest in the long-needed service to the isolated areas.

Following a small fire at the rear of the Prince George's main deck earlier this year, CN cancelled the vessel's Alaska run and called for bids, a joint release from Williams and Transport Minister Bob Strachan says.

"Evidently there have been numerous bids from around the world, most of them at scrap value of about $200,000, that would see the Prince George taken away from British Columbia."

City Hospitals Send 200 Patients Home

Owner and his son with Ancestor V after her long trek

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Nearly 200 hospital patients have been sent home from both major Victoria hospitals since Saturday in an effort to clear beds for emergencies during an expected strike of technicians of Victoria General Hospital.

Royal Jubilee Hospital is geared to receive an estimated 60 emergency cases a day in a contingency plan that was put into operation Saturday.

About 82 members of Health Sciences Association employed at Victoria General were entitled to commence strike action at 8:40 a.m. today, but up to noon they were still on the job.

Meanwhile, the hospital had cleared about 100 beds by sending some patients home and not admitting others for elective surgery. The Victoria General bed load was down to 325 today.

At Jubilee 98 patients were sent home and at both hospitals medical teams were going through the wards assessing all acute and medical-surgical patients with a view to further discharges.

Dr. Ray LeHuquet, medical director at Jubilee, said patient response to the discharges had been surprisingly mild, but the rearrangement was "terribly disrupting" to medical staff who have had a tight schedule of operations to maintain.

For example, there were 60 surgical operations scheduled for today, some of which have been on a waiting list for a long time. More were likely to be cancelled for Tuesday.

"Obviously we are going to have to rethink how to handle these people, some of whom have high priority," the director said.

It is possible, he said, that when the hospitals return to normal there will be long overtime schedules for operating theatres as patients are re-fitted into operating priorities.

Today, Jubilee was expected to see HOSPITALS Page 2

Illegal Liquor Runs ... Now Family Fun

By PAT DUFOUR

A West Indian smuggling sloop sailed into the Inner Harbor under cover of darkness Saturday night.

Her intentions are honorable, however.

She's been bought by a Coquitlam inspection officer, Jon Van Tamelen, who's sailed her 10,044 miles from Grenada.

He had to. The 40-foot workboat has no engine. Her only electronics is a radio direction finder.

Van Tamelen, who calls his boat Ancestor V, first saw her when he was in the Caribbean aboard the Vancouver-owned charter boat Ring Andersen.

"We were in Kingstown on the island of St. Vincent when I saw her sail in. She was smuggling in 200 bags of rice from British Guiana. I knew then I had to have her," Van Tamelen said.

The Ancestor V was built on the island of Carriacou, 50 miles north of Grenada and is the first boat of her type ever to go through the Panama Canal or sail the Pacific.

Although built in 1971 she looks as if she could have been helmed by the ancient mariner of folklore.

Van Tamelen explained why. "The natives build these boats from Scottish plans that are 200 years old. There are no plans left now but they just build as they need them. A boat only lasts for about 10 years because they're worked so hard."

"They just keep picking up old trees they see that are the shape required and canibalize the old boat to make the new. The mast on this one has been on at least three other boats."

For ballast she relies on five tons of rock, securely held in place by timbers.

Sewage Closes Park

CRATER LAKE, Ore. (AP) — Crater Lake National Park, one of the United States' great natural wonders, has been shut down indefinitely because its drinking water supply is polluted by a fouled sewage line.

Investigators from the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta, checking on the cause of hundreds of cases of stomach disorder among recent park visitors, shut down the park after green dye poured into a toilet in the park lodge appeared in drinking water 90 minutes later.

The CDC said that between 500 and 1,000 persons had become ill in the park since mid-June, complaining mostly of severe nausea, diarrhea and cramps. No deaths were reported.

Police sealed off all entrances to visitors — which number up to 100,000 a month during the summer — and teams of medical personnel were flown in by helicopter to inoculate some 250 park employees and visitors for hepatitis.

"No one really knows how long the park will be closed," said Richard Sims, park superintendent.

Trust in Wilson Slips, Pound, Stocks Tumble

LONDON (AP) — The troubled pound sterling and the London stock market fell today as confidence waned in financial circles that Prime Minister Harold Wilson's new economic policy will bring down Britain's raging inflation.

There was widespread skepticism over the Labor government's anti-inflation package, announced Friday, as left-wing Laborites and several big unions prepared to oppose Wilson's package.

That pessimism could deepen later this week when the June price index published by the government is expected to show the annual rate of inflation has risen to more than 26 per cent, with worse to come. It currently stands at 25 per cent.

Monday's tumble on the stock and foreign currency markets reversed initial enthusiasm for the government's measures that attempt to cut the inflation rate to 10 per cent by next summer.

The pound, which made some gains last week in anticipation of those measures, slid to $2.1818 on the London market from Friday's close of $2.2005. It also lost ground against leading European currencies.

The value of the pound against 10 major currencies has fallen by 27.2 per cent since it was floated in December, 1971.

"It seems foreign operators are taking a poor view of the government's anti-inflation measures," said one dealer. "They're not satisfied there are enough teeth in the plan and are disappointed in the absence of a cut in government spending."

CONVICT SET AFIRE

MONTREAL (CP) — A prisoner who was set on fire by two other prisoners at a maximum security federal penitentiary remained in critical condition Sunday, police said.

"We don't know whether he will live or die," said a police spokesman.

Jean Paul Duguay, 35, a prisoner at the nearby Ashcroft Institute, was on his way to have a shower last Tuesday when two prisoners splashed him with a flammable fluid and set him on fire, police said.

He suffered third-degree burns to about 75 per cent of his body.

Duguay was transferred to Queen Mary's Veteran Hospital from another Montreal hospital Sunday, hospital officials said.

Two prisoners are expected to be arraigned in sessions court this week in connection with the incident.

Cain Again Breaks Out of Jail

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Daniel Bradley Cain, object of a sensational seven-hour Greater Victoria police manhunt April 8, is on the loose again.

The 19-year-old fugitive is being hunted by police following his escape early today from Wilkinson Road provincial jail where he was awaiting trial on charges including kidnapping and theft, laid following the April incident.

CAIN

Saanich police said Cain, 19, was reported missing from the jail at 4:33 a.m.

Owens warned that Cain may be armed and dangerous and that anyone seeing him should call police immediately.

"Everyone in the Greater Victoria area should be cautious of opening their doors... until he's spotted, he could be anywhere," Owens said.

He said police have a drag-net out in the area and extra men have been called in to patrol all exits out of the city. George Triplett, senior corrections officer at Wilkinson Road, said the escape was "implemented from the inside."

Although Triplett would not expand on how Cain escaped, police said Cain squeezed under his cell door and pried two bars from an outside window to gain freedom.

Cain is described as being five-feet five-inches, 125 pounds, slight build, with shoulder length sandy-blond hair and a tattoo of a heart and knife on his left forearm. He was brought back to Victoria from the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster last Sunday for preliminary hearing Monday on a six-count charge of kidnapping 27-year-old Mrs. Diane Smith of 116 Leonard and her daughter Emily, 3, car theft, possession of a known stolen car, criminally negligent driving and being unlawfully in a dwelling house—that of the Smiths.

The Nose in the Theatre —A Film Break-Through

The motion picture trade papers are viewing tepidly the advent of "the smellies" — two producing companies now being in a race to be the first to assault our noses — and I think the critics are lamentably short on imagination.

They laughed at the talkies, too, remember. Now there's one in most living rooms.

For myself I'm so confident that Scent-o-Vision will be a smash that I'm planning to apply for the job of reviewer. My qualifications are cast-iron. I've the biggest nose in the office.

What's caused the lack of enthusiasm for flicks-with-a-fragrance, I suppose, is the fact that the power to smell has somehow become the most under-rated of the senses.

We take it for granted, in the first place, because it is so rarely lost or impaired as sight, hearing or speech often are and, secondly, because there's so little in the urban aroma that's anything but nasty. A man who opened his nostrils joyously might drop dead with a head full of carbon monoxide.

The trend, indeed, is to eliminate or camouflage every honest odor of our lives and, unhappily, the good goes with the bad.

Millions are spent in sprays, soaps, salves, sachets and aerosol mists to protect the delicate olfactory from noxious fumes and so an organ that was once a sensitive instrument has become obsolescent.

"The Smellies" will, I hope, rescue us from this dismal fate and save us from a world permeated with Air-Wick.

Scent-o-Vision, itself, seems such a simple and logical idea that I can't see how it will miss.

A doo-ligger beside each seat in the theatre will squirt a series of essences synchronized with the action on the screen. The hero and heroine are at breakfast? You'll get a fast whiff of bacon and eggs and coffee. The silken siren is in her boudoir? Her perfume will massage your nostrils, driving strong men wild.

The critics are saying that this will prove merely distracting, but, of course, that will depend entirely on the artistry of the producers.

If the theatre-going public is able to adjust itself to the off-screen presence of a full symphony orchestra, setting the mood for a scene through music, then surely it will accept the more subtle suggestion that comes from the hidden atomizer.

How much more effective will be the perennial chase in the westerns, for example, when you've a beak full of real dust? How much more graphic will be the Godfather films when the acrid effluvia of cordite engulfs you? Think of the love sequences in the hay — with the nasal passages aroused by real hay!

Why we may leave the Cinema of the future not merely sated with emotions, but with a whole new set of allergies.

I am, however, more interested in the technique of the second experimenting company.

Instead of trying for immediate visual associations — the see-it-smell-it formula of Scent-o-Vision — it will attempt to heighten the emotions by more insinuating aromas.

Though the method is being kept a secret, the producers claim to have developed scents which will suggest joy, sorrow, fear, hatred and love, among other emotional responses.

This, too, is not as far-fetched as it would seem at first sniff. Smells do have the power of evoking such responses.

There is something of sorrow and certainly of nostalgia in the fragrance of burning autumn leaves. If you've ever passed through the fields of lavender in the south of France you need look no farther for the scent of romance. The resinous smell of a pine forest surely suggests the quality of peace just as the musty smell of an old and deserted house may suggest gloom or despair.

Just how you'd distill a perfume to convey a feeling of fear or hatred and not have your customers streaming from the theatre is a problem I gladly leave to the inventors. Yet the smell of fear and the smell of hatred are, I think, capable of definition.

Yes, mark my words, you'll see the day when a theatre will proudly proclaim, "It Smells!" and pack them in.

Citizen Award To Entertainer

GRAY

A man who has been entertaining Greater Victoria senior citizens for years received the annual good citizen award of the Native Sons of B.C. Post No. 1 on Sunday.

Donald Gray, 80, of 2378 Rosario received his award at a presentation in the bandshell at Beacon Hill Park following a band concert.

Gray has for the past 12 years organized and conducted variety concerts for Silver Threads centres in the city, and has also entertained senior citizens groups at Grant Manor, Glenarry Private Hospital, Gorge Road Hospital, and elsewhere.

Man Injured On Hang Glider

Lloyd Mathews, 2424 Wark St., is suffering from a fractured nose and left wrist, possible head injuries and multiple cuts.

Saanich police said a change in wind direction caused Mathews to plummet to the bottom of the pit at about noon Sunday. Mathews was with three other men at the time of the accident.

Police said all four men have used the pit on previous occasions for hang-gliding and were warned not to. The pit, fenced in behind locked gates, is the property of the Municipality of Saanich.

A police spokesman said charges of trespassing on city property may be laid against the four.

Panic-buyers emptied bread shelves at Victoria corner stores during the weekend, stocking up for a threatened bakers strike that won't materialize—at least this week.

"They thought the bakers were going on strike," manager Sammy Low of the Hillside Low Cost Market said today.

Truants To Be Expelled?

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

A new get-tough policy on student truancy will be proposed to Greater Victoria school board trustees tonight by board administration.

The proposal is that the board suspend any pupil whose unexcused absences are hurting his schoolwork, "or where a disproportionate amount of a teacher's time is needed to maintain such a pupil in his (her) classes."

The suspension would occur only "where the principal concerned has made a reasonable effort to work with the pupil and his (her) parents or guardians."

Deputy superintendent Dr. John Wiens said today the board has no firm policy at present, and principals rarely suspend a student who is continually absent.

"They (principals and teachers) just try and try until it gets ridiculous. And the kids that should be responding are laughing about it," he said.

"We've just decided, if you're that disinterested (in school) maybe we should throw you out altogether."

In its report to the board's administration committee, board administration said:

"During the past few years, schools in this district have tried in many ways to make school more useful, appealing and relevant."

"Among other things, young people have been given more freedom to make decisions. The majority has accepted this challenge in a very responsible manner, but a minority is abusing every privilege which is extended."

The result, said the report, is that teachers, principals, counsellors, psychologists and others devote great amounts of time to these few students, "with the further result that the responsible majority is often neglected."

The new policy, developed with the consultation of school principals, is aimed at dealing with one of the major problem areas caused by these troublemakers.

Wiens said most students are attending school better than a few years ago. The problem isn't with them, he said, but with the extreme cases.

The proposed policy comes in the wake of last month's reports from 42 local schools to Education Minister Eileen Daily on classroom management (discipline), discrimination, communication and evaluation.

The reports, prepared by teachers, parents and students, voiced concern and even apprehension about a decline in student behaviour, and the lack of meaningful punishment for serious behaviour problems.

"The schools feel that existing procedure for removal of disruptive students is unrealistically slow and bureaucratic," said a summary of the reports. "Much damage is done in the interim."

ARSON SUSPECTED IN FIRE

Arson is suspected in a fire that did $4,000 to $5,000 damage early this morning to a vacant house at 634 Dupplin.

Saanich Fire Chief Harold Gains said firemen found several attempts to set fire to the house throughout the building.

Firemen arrived shortly after 2 a.m. to find the kitchen in flames and the rest of the house full of smoke. The blaze was under control in about 15 minutes, Gains said.

He said the house, owned by Frank Wille of 940 Lake View, was empty and due for demolition.

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Roadside produce stands in Saanich have withered from a once-flourishing cottage enterprise to a handful of scattered outlets before the inroads of inflation and thievery.

In one five-mile stretch of country this week, the Times found only 10 stands, two of which are operated as year-round businesses, four were abandoned and another appeared closed.

Former operators complained of rising costs of production making it unprofitable to compete with stores and supermarkets, or of children who steal and motorists who help themselves to two bunches for the price of one.

An exception is the couple that has operated a vegetable, geranium and cut flower stand for most of the 20 years they have lived at 4265 Blenkinsop, raising the produce in their garden.

Mrs. John Tindell explained: "We're old-age pensioners. It helps us along but we don't make an awful big profit. Everything's up—fertilizer, the water bill—and we've cut down on the size of the garden."

For the Tindells, since their family has been grown up, the stand is a hobby, "something for us to do. We love it. It's hard work but you wouldn't do it if you didn't like it."

"When you get out in the garden you forget all your troubles," Mrs. Tindell said.

As for dishonest passersby, she admits there is theft by the occasional motorist: "We trust the people's honesty, and some are, some aren't."

Mrs. Donald Galey, 4818 Cordova Bay Road, said her family had given up selling vegetable produce because it is not possible to leave a stand unattended any more.

Her family used to do it when they were young, but theft is too much a risk today for untended stands, she felt.

"There was a time when you could get away with it, but not anymore," Mrs. Galey said, regretting that people are becoming less trustworthy.

While it lasted, the Galey's stand provided the family with some welcome extra income, and "I guess we enjoyed it while we were in it," Mrs. Galey said.

Today the family concentrates on its eggs and poultry business and confines roadside sales to two days a week. Another egg producer is

Donald Harwood, 4439 Blenkinsop, which is also a full-time business with sales made from the family garage, not a roadside stand.

Mrs. Harwood said the family has 5,000 hens and is able to sell eggs 5-10 cents a dozen below store prices. But they can't compete with supermarket specials.

The James O'Brien family, 4696 West Saanich, started a stand as a hobby and ran it for a couple of years, but gave it up because it became too much work for the profit derived.

Mrs. Gerardus De Greef, 4671 West Saanich, mainly sold cut flowers with some vegetables, and operated for many years before becoming discouraged.

"More and more people came to steal: they took the flowers without putting any money in the box down below," she said.

Critics of roadside selling say they can get the same produce in a store at no more than the rural price without having to waste gasoline to shop.

From place to place and time to time, depending on the season, that may be true. But most operators claim

'It helps us along,
but profits
are small'

their prices are lower than downtown, and if they weren't who would take the trouble to drive into the country to buy?

The Times noticed buyers at one vegetable stand to be astute shoppers who would not make a purchase that cost more than it would at Woodward's or Safeway's.

They also appreciate that stand-bought produce is likely to be fresher than that found in markets.

The family stand at 1360 McKenzie had carrots, beets, lettuce, radishes, cucumber, onions, celery, tomatoes, and potatoes and was doing a brisk business Thursday with prices about five cents a pound lower than downtown.

But not all the produce was raised at home. Some was obtained from greenhouse operators in the district.

Hothouse tomatoes, for example, were offered at 50 cents a pound, considerably less than store prices that have recently hit 85 cents.

The family did not wish to be identified and explained the stand was run for the benefit of the children to give them some earnings during school holidays.

The mother could not explain why other operators had declined, other than to suggest their prices may have been too high.

Children of the Frank Cadorette family, 1642 Blair, offered vegetables and flowers by the bunch—50 cents for Swiss chard, 25 cents for lettuce and flowers and 15 cents for parsley and chives—and complained that business was slow.

Jim Cooper, 7046 East Saanich, who operated a stand for 25 years, said this was the first year he hadn't done so, attributing the decision to rising costs of production.

According to B.C. Federation of Agriculture, the bulk of roadside vending is done at orchards in the Okanagan fruit belt, which remains viable.

Although there is virtually no regulation or record-keeping directed toward produce stands in B.C. The federation keeps an eye on the industry to the extent that it can say stands are not especially profitable, taking the time spent into consideration.

Generally, they are small, family-run and geared to crop seasons, and generally the selling prices are lower than stores.

An exception is early fruit which can be imported by grocery chains at prices lower than a producer can afford to sell at.

The federation says roadside sales account for a small part of the total crop in B.C.; for example 80 per cent of all strawberries go to the processing industry, and only a small portion of the balance is sold on stands.

On the other hand, "about half the peach crop goes to people who drive out to the orchards—sometimes going all the way from the lower mainland—to get what they want."

Streamlined Bus Service Promised by Lorimer

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

A re-arrangement of bus services is in store for the Greater Victoria area, Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said today.

In an interview, he said transit planning in the Victoria area "has historically been very bad, and the whole system needs to be redone."

There is a lot of waste in the network's operation, with adequate bus service on some lines, but almost no service on other lines, he said.

Except for the start of two additional lines last year, there has been no change in the transit system's operation since 1952. Lorimer blamed the poor transit planning on the previous Social Credit government's administration.

Addition of 25 new buses to the service have been earmarked for Victoria and will be fed into the system when this year's order comes through in "the near future."

But depending on the results of a study into the network, all the buses may not be needed if more efficient use can be made of vehicles currently in operation here.

This year's B.C. order for buses will add some 180 vehicles to the fleet, and the government's planned fast-bus service to the Saanich Peninsula and a park and ride service for civil servants in the legislative precinct hang on the delivery of buses.

The park and ride service which will eventually transport civil servants from parking lots on the perimeter of Victoria to their offices in the core area also depends on purchase by the provincial government of suitable sites for parking lots.

Lorimer said the province is investigating purchase of three lots but declined to specify the areas.

On another topic the minister said hopefully by the fall the province will be able to reinstate a monthly bus pass system for commuters in the Sooke area travelling via Pacific Commuter Ltd.

He said weekly and monthly passes, previously available before the government took over the transit system operated by Southwest Coach Ltd., will likely offer a 15 per cent to 20 per cent reduction in the daily rate.

Cancellation of the passes sparked an outcry from Sooke area residents.

Dispute in 40th Day

Strikers at Esquimalt dockyard number 152 today in the 40th day of the dispute between maintenance and repair personnel and the federal defence department.

No pickets have been set up in Victoria, and Dockyard Trades and Labor Council men off work are mostly shipwrights, joiners and carpenters, pipe shop, specialty and refrigeration workers.

Negotiations have been going on since March in the dispute being mediated by University of B.C. industrial relations professor Mark Thompson.

Seniors Receive Federal Grants

Grants totalling more $8,000 have been received by two senior citizens' groups in Victoria under the federal New Horizons program.

Garden City Pensioners and Victoria Pearlies will both pick up cheques to further their services and activities. The Pensioners, 941 Pandora, receive $6,000 to organize film showings, music events, arts and crafts classes and bingo games at their centre.

Group members will also prepare their own song sheet and a newsletter.

Pearlies' members receive $2,176 to help finance visits to hospitals, nursing homes and charity fund-raising functions where they entertain.

Bread Buyers Leave No Crumbs

Of a dozen corner stores in Victoria surveyed, only KC Market at Bowker and Cadboro Bay reported bread sales were normal.

Stephen Young, manager of Young's Low Cost, said his store was sold out even though he received more bread than usual last week.

"We were cleaned up yesterday. Usually we've got enough for this morning. Might be they're worried about a strike," said Young.

At Jubilee Market, Fort and Richmond, the shelves were empty Sunday.

Oak Bay Produce manager Susan Chow said bread may already be difficult to get. Her Weston Bakeries supplier brought only half the normal amount at last delivery.

Bias Hurts Viets

REGINA (CP) — A housing shortage aggravated by racial discrimination has been the main obstacle to 14 Vietnamese refugees attempting to start new lives in Regina.

The 14 began arriving here about 14 days ago and have had little trouble finding jobs but great difficulty finding accommodation.

All 14 now are staying in a downtown hotel, but will have to leave July 28 to make room for visitors to the city's annual Buffalo Days exhibition.

Manpower counselor Nancy Quirk said in an interview it is hard enough to anyone to find suitable housing in the city, but the refugees' problem is compounded by discrimination.

She said two boarding houses refused to rent to the Vietnamese.

Quirk said both landlords asked what Vietnamese look like and refused to rent to them after being told their appearance is similar to Japanese or Chinese.

Such discrimination is permitted under a recent amendment to provincial human rights legislation.

The amendment permits discrimination by homeowners who would be sharing bathroom or kitchen facilities with tenants.

Quirk said the federal Manpower and Immigration Department has been unable to find accommodation for the Vietnamese for after they have to move out of the hotel.

Go-Home Hunger Strike

AGANA, Guam (Reuter) — Several hundred South Vietnamese have launched demonstrations and hunger strikes here to try to speed the process of repatriating them.

Many of the 1,477 refugees are members of the former South Vietnamese armed forces who still have families in Vietnam.

About half of them, led by a group who returned to Guam from the United States two weeks ago, started a 24-hour hunger strike Friday.

They and others sang patriotic Vietnamese songs on lawns outside their navy barracks and carried signs reading "We love our country," "We want to go home," and "We are slaves."

OLYMPIC DRAW WILL GO ON

MONTREAL (CP) — The Olympic lottery has been so successful that it "will continue a long time after" the 1976 Olympic Games, Mayor Jean Drapeau said Saturday.

The lottery, which had been forecast to produce $32 million, has surpassed expectations and revenue estimates now are up to $27 million, he said in a radio interview.

Mr. Drapeau also said there was no contradiction between his statement to the International Olympic Committee last May and the statement to the parliamentary commission recently citing the amount of work lost due to the recent construction strike at the 1976 Olympic Games site.

In May he said that the construction project was not behind schedule. The president of the construction firm told the municipal affairs standing committee in the national assembly Wednesday that the 11-week delay in work can easily be made up and the project had not been adversely affected.

Mayor Drapeau said the statements were not contradictory, but that they complemented each other. His statement had been misinterpreted. The "modest" increase in the cost was not unrealistic, because of skyrocketing costs everywhere. For example, he said, the French-language newspaper La Presse has raised the cost of its newspaper three and a half times the price it was three years ago.

It was three years ago, he said, that he made the first estimate of costs for the Olympics. The original cost estimate of $310 million has been raised to $714.8 million.

Puget Quake

The Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich recorded a minor earthquake last night that shook the Puget Sound area around Seattle.

The quake, which wasn't felt in the Victoria area, registered just over 3 on the Richter Scale.

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. A reading of 5.0 reflects a quake 10 times stronger than one of 4.0.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.3.

CHILDREN START GRASS FIRE

Twenty-five fires burning on southern Vancouver Island are being patrolled by the B.C. Forest Service—and all but four of those were started by lightning last week.

Four new fires were sparked over the weekend, including a one-acre grass fire near Colwood caused by children playing with matches, a forest service spokesman said today.

It took four water tankers Sunday to control it, he said. All current fires are small and cover a total of less than 10 acres, said the spokesman.

the weather

Thunderstorms rumbled on until past midnight at a few points in the B.C. Interior last night. Scattered thunder-shower activity again this afternoon and evening will mar an otherwise generally sunny day throughout the interior. Low cloud and intermittent drizzle will persist on the north coast and the outer coast of Vancouver Island today. Meantime, other coastal areas should experience considerable sunshine. This pattern along with seasonable temperatures is expected to be repeated Tuesday.

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israeli planes attacked a Palestinian refugee camp in Lebanon twice, and four persons were reported killed and 22 wounded. Several hours later rockets from southern Lebanon hit the Israeli town of Nahariya, slightly wounding two women, the Israeli command announced. In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin reported to the Israeli cabinet on his meeting with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger. A communiqué said the government would continue "the process of clarification and negotiation with the purpose of reaching a positive conclusion." The Palestine guerrillas said their missile and gun crews hit two of the Israeli Phantom jets that rocketed and strafed the Ein Helweh refugee camp near Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut, Sunday. The Lebanese defence ministry said one of the jets crashed in flames into the Mediterranean. But the Israeli command said: "All our planes returned safely to base."

Residents of the camp said the first attack lasted 20 minutes, and the second attack came 20 minutes later.

The rockets destroyed a guerrilla radio station and damaged a number of huts and a mosque.

The Israelis said a plant manufacturing war materials for guerrillas was among the targets, but residents of the camp denied that such a plant existed.

Palestinian sources said those killed were a woman, a

"I'm told she carried 1,000 cases of spirits from Martinique to Grenada on her first trip," Van Tamen said. "And her decks were loaded with champagne."

Van Tamen's son, Todd, 11, accompanied his father and Van Tamen's nephew, Brian, on the first leg from Grenada to the Panama Canal.

They flew home from the canal, Hilton Fraser of Sarnia, Ont., taking their place as crew from that point on. Van Tamen reports it took 39 days to sail her from Hawaii.

All Ancestor V's lights, running and cabin, and her stove are powered by kerosene. When she left Grenada she had five gallons aboard and there's still a gallon left.

She's due to leave Victoria for her new home port on Tuesday with an escort to tow her through Active Pass and other crowded waterways.

"It would be stupid to attempt it alone with no engine aboard," Van Tamen said. "Other people wouldn't realize and I could get other boats in trouble."

He intends to put in a diesel engine and fit Ancestor V with an outside keel once he's home but will not alter her workmanlike character.

Cain Breaks Out

higher court trial last Tuesday, Cain was taken to Wilkenson Road. He was to have appeared in Victoria provincial court today for statutory remand then returned to the B.C. Penitentiary.

"We were very much aware of the possibility of his attempt to escape," said Triplett, who is heading the investigation into the escape. "That's why we had him transferred to the B.C. Pen in the first place."

"Cain is a former escapee from the William Head branch of the B.C. Pen. ... we are a remand centre and not really equipped to handle this type of inmate," he added.

Cain had been sentenced late in 1974 in Victoria to two years for breaking and thefts and was due for release in 1976. But on the night of March 22, police said, he left William Head in Metehosin. A quiet two-week search for him was transformed April 8 into an intensive manhunt which included a car chase, exchange of gunfire, abduction of hostages and finally, arrest. More than 50 Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen and RCMP were involved in the hunt.

On June 11, while awaiting routine statutory remand on the charges arising from the manhunt, Cain staged what Victoria police called "a childish prank" by climbing onto a tiny barred windowledge on the walls of the Victoria police station and staying there for eight hours. Cain told the press he was protesting special confinement at Wilkenson Road for himself and fellow inmate William Mack, 26.

During the eight hours, Cain learned he and Mack were to be transferred to a B.C. mainland detention facility because of an alleged plan to escape from the jail. Michael Hutchison, defence lawyer for Cain, said at that time the reports of escape were "all lies".

End Looms For Cuba Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States is expected to take up the Cuba embargo this week with some indications the 11-year trade ban may be eased.

The 12-day meeting in Costa Rica beginning Wednesday marks the third time in as many years the Cuba embargo has come up, and United States officials believe there is a better-than-even chance the OAS will either repeal or substantially weaken the embargo at this meeting.

One reason officials foresee affirmative action is that the U.S. is prepared for the first time to support a change in the 11-year-old OAS policy.

Eight months ago in Ecuador, the last time the OAS voted on a repeal proposal, 12 of the 21 countries were in favor but the embargo continued because the vote fell short of the required two-thirds majority of 14.
